S. Korean President Resumes His Office

Junta Persuades Yun Po-sun To Stay, Giving New Regime Legal Constitutional Status

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—Bowing to pleas of rebel generals, President Yun Po-sun today withdrew his one-day old resignation to give South Korea's new military regime constitutional status.

The elder statesman, 63, announced he had agreed to stay on as the civilian figurehead chief-of-state to avoid "international repercussions."

Foreign diplomats are accredited to the president and U. S. officials take the view that Yun remaining in office would make recognition of the new regime automatic.

The president announced withdrawal of his resignation at a news conference flanked by the two top leaders of the ruling junta—Lt. Gen. Chang Do-young, who named himself premier and defense minister earlier in the day, and Maj. Gen. Pak Jung-hi.

Gen. Chang, 38, in taking over as premier named a 15-man cabinet—all military men.

The presence of the revolutionary leaders at his side did not stop Yun from expressing regrets about the revolt that overthrew the elected government.

Offers Warning

"The military coup d'etat seems to give the people many encouraging hopes for the future although it was quite regrettable and I wish it had never occurred in this country," he said.

And he warned that he would resign again if the new regime

Freed Cubans To Ask Ransom For Captives

Castro Says They Will be Sent to U. S. Tomorrow

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP)—A committee of prisoners captured in the recent invasion of Cuba will be sent to the United States Sunday to arrange for the ransom of their companions, Prime Minister Fidel Castro said today.

Castro, speaking on television from Havana, said the 1,200 prisoners captured in the April 17 attack would be exchanged "in increasing order of importance" for 500 bulldozers.

The Cuban prime minister said he had reports that the United States was considering dealing through the Red Cross, but that this was not necessary. "We don't need intermediaries," he said, adding, "Mr. Kennedy now has the floor."

Blames CIA for Disaster

When he made the disclosure, Castro had been in the midst of a speech to Cuban government officials, foreign diplomats and unionists. They were attending a meeting to celebrate his winning of the Lenin Peace Prize.

He also startled his audience when he said the Cuban navy had evidence that a launch that disappeared May 6 with a loss of 17 lives had been sunk by "a submarine of the Central Intelligence Agency."

"It is, of course, difficult to prove, but our conclusion was that our vessel was sunk by a penetrating torpedo," Castro said.

He added that prior to the disappearance of the launch—the R43—the navy had received an

80 Tons of Sand Spill at Racine

RACINE (AP)—A sand-loaded Chicago and North Western Railway freight car spilled its 80-ton cargo on a busy city intersection Friday when it toppled off a viaduct in a derailment.

The car was one of nine hoppers which derailed near a crossing and ripped up 450 feet of track. There were no injuries.

Railroad officials said the cause of the accident was not determined. North Western trains were about a half hour off schedule until the track was repaired.

Thurman Whiteside Shoots Self to Death

MIAMI (UPI) — Atty. Thurman A. Whiteside killed himself yesterday, less than a year after winning a long battle to clear his name of influence-peddling charges involving former Federal Communications Commissioner Richard A. Mack.

Whiteside, 49, long-time friend of Mack, was found slumped in a chair in a law library off his downtown office about 2:15 p.m.

Police said Whiteside shot himself in the head with a 22-caliber automatic pistol.

Whiteside was acquitted last October of charges he conspired with Mack to rig the award of television channel 10 in Miami to Public Seervice Television, Inc., a National Airlines subsidiary.

Cancer Takes Life Of Former Senator

WASHINGTON (AP)— Former Sen. George W. (Molly) Malone, who fought tirelessly for higher tariffs and western mineral interests, is dead of cancer.

The 70-year-old former Nevada Republican senator had been in the hospital since May 12. He died yesterday.

Malone was defeated for reelection in 1958 by Sen. Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., and made an unsuccessful bid last year for Nevada's lone seat in Congress.

Hope Summit Talks Will Ease Tension

World Leaders Don't Look For Great Achievements

LONDON (AP) — The world hoped today the Kennedy-Khrushchev meeting in Austria two weeks from now would ease international tension. But there was caution about expecting any momentous results.

"It's the Vienna Waltz," said the conservative London Daily Sketch over a cartoon showing the U. S. President and the Soviet premier dancing together.

India's philosopher-statesman, Vice President Sarvapalli Radhakrishnan, said the future of humanity is at stake in these cruel times.

Support in India

"One of our ancient scriptures tells us that when danger is near, salvation also is near," he said in a New Delhi banquet speech that put the moral support of his neutral nation behind the coming meeting.

He spoke at a state dinner for visiting U. S. Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson.

British Foreign Secretary Lord Home told reporters that to meet Kennedy "is a salutary experience for anybody, and we hope very much that good will come out of this meeting."

Kennedy will call at London for talks with Prime Minister Harold Macmillan after his meeting with Khrushchev June 3-4.

Adenauer Hopeful

There was no direct comment from French President Charles de Gaulle. Members of his official family said he had neither any objections nor any enthusiasm for the meeting. Kennedy will meet with De Gaulle in Paris and go directly from these talks to see Khrushchev.

The government press bureau in Bonn said West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer welcomes the meeting and thinks Khrushchev and Kennedy should get to know one another personally.

The Japanese foreign office also approved of the summit meeting as a chance to slacken world tension.

A Yugoslav spokesman said the Tito government hopes the conference will contribute to peace and better cooperation.

The British press unanimously applauded the meeting plan. The London Daily Express said the gap since an American and a Soviet leader last met has been too long and unprofitable.

But the conservative Daily Telegraph's correspondent in Washington regretted that the Vienna meeting will not include other world chiefs.

Oshkosh Boy Drowns at Patrol Picnic

Stephen Heling, 13, Was on Outing Sponsored by Police

OSHKOSH — A 13-year-old St. John Catholic School safety patrol boy drowned about 6 a.m. today at Wisconsin Dells on the annual Oshkosh Police Department outing for patrol members.

He was Stephen Heling, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Heling, 427 W. 14th Ave., Oshkosh.

Oshkosh police this morning were informed by a group chaperone that Stephen and three other boys had received his permission to take photographs in the cabin area, and were told to stay together and away from the water.

A short time later two boys returned to the cabin area. A third boy returned to tell that Stephen had walked out on a ledge about 3 feet above the water of the Wisconsin River, looked down, lost his balance and fell in. The boy was unable to grasp a belt dangled to him by his companion. The current took him from shore. The body was not recovered by 10 a.m.

Other details of the drowning were unavailable.

The patrol outing is a merit reward for patrol boys and girls who perform crossing guard work well during the previous school year. Three or four from each school normally are sent each year. This year's group had 64 children and their chaperones.

10,000 Homeless As Fire Sweeps Through Manilla

MANILA (UPI) — Flames swept through blocks of flimsy buildings in Manila's teeming Chinatown today, causing an estimated $25 million damage and leaving 10,000 persons homeless.

A fire department spokesman said after the roaring blaze was brought under control that a fireman with serious burns was the only known casualty.

President and 3 Ex-Presidents Send Cards to 112-Year-Old

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP)—Upon a man's 112th birthday anniversary he's in line for something special in greetings.

It was certainly so for William (Dad) Eddington.

Topping an imposing pile of mail at Eddington's home on his 112th were congratulations from President John F. Kennedy and all three living ex-Presidents—Dwight D. Eisenhower, Harry S. Truman and Herbert Hoover.

Eddington, born May 20, 1849, has lived under the administrations of 23 American Presidents.

The family planned no celebration for Eddington. In the last year his health has failed. Anyway, "I've had a-plenty," he said.

His Presidents' cards:

From Hoover, 86:

"You have had an extraordinary and long life. You have lived through much of America's history."

"I'm a teen-ager compared to you."

President Kennedy, 44:

"It may seem presumptuous for me, 68 years your junior, to join you in this celebration. "But I do want you to know that this event brings pleasure to all of us. I send warmest wishes for this fine occasion."

Former President Eisenhower, 70:

"It is a great pleasure to send congratulations to someone young enough to live to enjoy his 112th birthday."

Former President Truman, 77.

"I hope you will have a happy birthday and many more happy birthdays."

French and Algerian Rebels Launch Talks

AP Wirephoto

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev, who will meet President Kennedy in Vienna June 3 and 4 for an exchange of views, greets Ruslan Abdulgani in Moscow Wednesday. Abdulgani, Indonesian Minister of State, heads an official government delegation visiting the Soviet Union.

Troops Told Not to Take Offensive

EVIAN - LES - BAINS, France (AP) — France and the Algerian rebels opened peace talks today and the De Gaulle government made two side conciliatory gestures.

1. French forces in Algeria were ordered to cease all offensive operations against the rebels they have been fighting for almost seven years at 6 p.m.

2. Algerian rebel chieftain Ahmed ben Bella was flown from a fortress prison the Ile d'Aix to a site closer to the peace talks in this Lake Geneva resort city.

It was reported from Algeria that word has already been passed to the 500,000 soldiers in the territory to fire only in self-defense. It was understood that patrols would continue in the territory, but only for reconnaissance purposes.

Arrested in 1956

Ben Bella was taken off the island in the Bay of Biscay by helicopter along with his companions Hocine Ait Ahmed and Mohamed Khidder. All three men had been seized in 1956 when their Moroccan airliner en route to Tunisia was intercepted by French fighter planes over the Mediterranean and forced to land at Algiers.

The improved conditions ordered for the three men will allow them to contact the rebel delegation in Geneva by telephone. At some later stage Ben Bella may also be allowed to sit in on the peace talks.

Three other imprisoned rebel leaders were also taken from Fresnes prison in Paris this morning.

Hotel Strongly Guarded

The long-awaited peace negotiations opened here in a secluded hotel guarded by hundreds of heavily armed policemen.

Facing one another across the table were Algerian Nationalist Foreign Minister Krim Belkacem and French Minister for Algerian Affairs Louis Joxe.

Krim and his delegation arrived aboard three helicopters from across Lake Leman in neutral Switzerland.

Joxe drove up in a black limousine, preceded by another carrying Jean Verdier, director of France's "Surete" and the nation's top policeman.

Both the rebel delegation and the French were serious faced and reserved as they arrived. The only hopeful note was the wave and faint smile of rebel delegate Taieb Boularouf as his helicopter circled over a group of newsmen.

The rebel helicopters carrying Krim's delegation landed on a heavily guarded strip some 300 yards from the Hotel du Parc, where the talks began.

Residents Evacuated

Ether, Asphalt Peril Baton Rouge Area

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Police evacuated residents of a 16-block area in downtown Baton Rouge early today when two cars of a Kansas City Southern freight train derailed, one carrying 27,000 gallons of volatile ether and the other loaded with molten asphalt.

Authorities, fearing the hot tar spewing on the ether-carrying car might spark an explosion and fire, hastily evacuated an estimated 250 persons from homes four blocks on all sides of the accident scene.

Firemen sprayed water on the derailed tank cars to cool the asphalt.

The area in which the derailment occurred is predominantly a Negro residential section. Homes are located no more than 100 feet from the wrecked tank cars.

"It's a serious thing," said City Police Inspector R. S. Trigg, who is directing safety operations. "We're extremely worried, even though we think we've got the tar cooled off now."

Wrecker Awaited

A 250-ton train wrecker car was expected to arrive later today to try to remove the ether car from the ruptured asphalt car. Trigg said it was the only one in the state large enough to move the 30,000-gallon capacity ether car away from the tar car.

"That's going to be the really critical time," Trigg said. "We don't know what's going to happen when they try to move it.

"You know how ether is," he said. "A little spark and the whole works could go up."

Trigg said when the wrecker arrives, the police and fire departments will increase their forces at the scene and evacuate still more people.

State Insurance Concern Ordered Closed by Judge

MADISON (AP)—An estimated 6,500 Wisconsin residents automatically lost their legal right to drive Friday afternoon at 4:30 p. m. when Circuit Judge Edwin Wilkie signed an order cancelling all the policies of Superior Mutual Insurance Co. of Madison.

Wilkie ordered the 25-year old firm, formerly called the Cheesemakers Mutual Casualty Insurance Co., liquidated as insolvent.

Superior Mutual did $2 million a year in business and had 20,000 policyholders, about 11,000 in Wisconsin.

The firm was one of the few in the nation specializing in high-premium insurance for substandard risk drivers, including those whose licenses were revoked for accidents or traffic violations.

Wisconsin drivers who have their licenses revoked are required to file proof of financial responsibility in order to receive a reinstated license, explained motor vehicle commissioner James L. Karns.

Crowds Hail Vice President In Pakistan

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — Crowds shouting "Long live Pakistan and long live the United States" welcomed Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson today as he arrived for talks with President Ayub Khan.

A fierce midday sun and dust-laden wind kept the crowd to the smallest of any that have welcomed Johnson in the six capitals he has visited in Asia.

Nevertheless, the vice president quickly launched into an airport speech declaring he had brought President Kennedy's assurance of America's unwavering determination to "stand steadfast beside those who stand so steadyfastly against the encroachments of free independent peoples."

Talks to People

During the 10-mile drive from the airport to Ayub Khan's house, Johnson made a number of his now familiar forays into people-to-people diplomacy.

The motorcade, heavily guarded by police and Pakistan navy security jeeps, halted three or four times while Johnson talked to crowds lining the streets.

At one point he spotted a camel cart driver and told the driver, "I am on my way to talk to your president but first I want to meet some of his people."

Cuban Captivity Ends

Reporter Doubts Castro Still Head of Campaign Against U. S.

BY ROBERT BERRELLEZ

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—A powerful minority, with a fading picture of Fidel Castro as leader, rules Cuba now.

This minority, born out of the nucleus of well-trained Cuban Communists who went into the hills with Castro to support his revolution against deposed dictator Fulgencio Batista in 1958, is bent on carrying the new revolutionary dogma to every corner of Latin America.

U. S. Major Target

The objective: eventual destruction of "imperialism," the Socialistic term for the United States, without global war.

What part Fidel Castro personally will play in this is questioned by many.

These are the impressions gathered by this reporter from influential Cuban politicians, professionals, trained observers and the man-in-the-street during a 25-day imprisonment in one of Cuba's most ill-famed penitentiaries—La Cabana military fortress.

Together with 51 other American repatriates and about the same number of other passengers, we rode to freedom Friday from Havana.

The majority seemed hopeful of returning to a "free Cuba" someday. But most all were at a loss to explain how, or when.

This question was no mystery to the nearly 2,000 Cubans left in La Cabana when I left the military jail last May 12. To a man they were sure either direct American intervention or an invasion by the Organization of American States would liberate them. They seemed to have discarded any hope an internal upheaval would liberate them.

They knew that the abortive April invasion had destroyed a well-organized underground poised with smuggled arms to strike the minute an invasion came.

"They didn't tell us," bitterly cried one underground movement man in prison. "They ruined us and months and months of work, money and material are gone just because they didn't tell us they were coming. What's wrong with your people?"

Notables Imprisoned

La Cabana appeared populated by the top ranking people of the nation. There were no less than 25 doctors—some hemisphere-renowned specialists—in our prison, but hardly any aspirin to ease a common cold. A well-known Havana lawyer died of pneumonia May 10 despite repeated calls on the prison commandant that a man was seriously ill in a cell. But his death served to call attention to our plight. The next day aspirin and some penicillin were available to combat an epidemic of influenza that was still raging when I left the prison.

The lawyer who died—Dr. Enrique Guiralt—was among countless thousands rounded up starting April 15 in what possibly was the biggest detention of human beings in hemisphere history. The

Direct Contradiction

Anti-Semitism May Have Roots In Christian Faith, Book Says

By ANDREW MEISELS

NEW YORK (AP)—Does anti-Semitism have its roots in the Christian faith?

Has Christianity—founded by a Jewish savior in a Jewish land and spread by Jewish apostles—fomented the hatred of Jews?

Yes, says Prof. Jules Isaac, an eminent French-Jewish historian, in a book published this week by the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Although anti-Semitism is a direct contradiction of Christianity, Isaac holds, the Christian church fostered it in past ages and set into motion forces which culminated in the wholesale murder of Jews by the Nazis.

Not Anti Semitic

Isaac makes clear that present-day Christian churches are not anti-Semitic, but he says the trend set in former times has had far-reaching effect.

The professor, who lost nearly his whole family in a German concentration camp during World War II, says it is now the duty of Christianity to reverse this trend by purging itself of anti-Semitic relics in its liturgy and teachings.

Isaac has devoted much of his life to reversing what he feels are Christian misconceptions about Judaism and Jews. He has written two books on the subject and, in 1947, submitted 18 points recommending changes in Christian education about the Jews.

Work Translated

The current work, "Has Anti-Semitism Roots in Christianity?" is a translation of a lecture delivered by Isaac in France. Accompanying it are an introduction by Richard Cardinal Cushing, archbishop of Boston, and a critical analysis by a Protestant theologian, writer an deducator, Dr. Bernhard E. Olson.

True anti-Semitism, Isaac contends, began with Christianity and its teaching that the Jews killed Christ, that they had rejected Him and continued to reject Him and that their sufferings were just punishment for their sins.

Isaac says these teachings are historically unsound.

It was the Romans who crucified Jesus, he states, and they were supported in this not by the Jews at large but by a small oligarchy the Jews themselves detested.

It was not Christ the Jews rejected, Isaac argues, saying they remained faithful to Him "up to His last hour."

Jews Accept

The Jews rejected Christianity, he says, because "Christianity, directed towards the Gentiles, totally rejected obedience to the Torah, to the law."

Stung by this rejection and forced to answer the competition for the minds of man Judaism presented in the ancient world, the early Christians determined on a "teaching of contempt" for the Jews, Isaac says.

When Christianity became powerful, it extended this teaching of contempt to a "system of degradation" of the Jew, he adds.

Today, Isaac notes, "there is no Christian involvement in such crimes. Christian charity is employed in favor of the persecuted—sometimes it is employed to the point of heroism."

But the "teachin gof contempt" has not completely disappeared, he says.

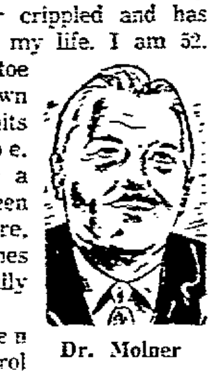
Hammer Toe Explained to Person With Foot Problems

BY JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: One of my feet is rather crippled and has been most of my life. I am 52, and on one toe that is drawn up the joint hits the shoe, therefore a corn has been formed there, and at times gets awfully sore.



Dr. Molner

"I've been able to control the pain by trimming or by using corn removers, but during the past year it has gotten very sore and gets red or puffed looking. Is this anything to be concerned about or is it just a result of a real sore corn? — Mrs. M.O."

This is probably a "hammer toe." But I haven't seen it, and there's one thing I won't do in this column, and that's be positive about things I haven't seen. I positively refuse to give a diagnosis by mail. Maybe I could be right 90 per cent of the time, but I might be wrong in the other 10 per cent, or five per cent or two per cent or one-half per cent. You, of course, understand why I'm trying to be careful.

With that qualification, let's go on. A "hammer toe" is something that usually occurs in the second toe, but can be in some other toe.

Sometimes hammer toe starts in childhood. Sometimes it starts after adult age has been reached. Shoes that don't fit properly are the most likely cause. So far as I know hammer toe doesn't occur in people who go barefoot all their lives.

Shoes are a wonderful invention, but shoes do sometimes create problems. Feet are not all the same shape. Neither are shoes. So let's agree that sometimes the wrong shoe is chosen for a foot. It shouldn't happen, but it does.

If there isn't quite enough length for the toe that sticks out farthest, the toe is bent a bit.

The upper part of the toe rubs against the shoe, and a callus, or corn, or thickened place in the skin, develops. If there is sufficient irritation, the bursa, or sac on the joint of the toe, is irritated. Sticky fluid develops and it accumulates under the callus, or corn, or what-do-you-call-it. (The turned down tip of the toe may get sore, too.)

If the bend in the toe has become sufficiently fixed, the mere change to shoes that fit properly won't undo the damage that has been done. The toe has become used to being bent, and it stays bent.

Can Be Corrected

Sometimes, especially when the patient is young, the trouble can be ended by taping the bent toe so it lies flat. This should first be done by your doctor or by a podiatrist (trained in foot troubles). After the doctor shows how to do the taping, you can usually do it yourself.

In adults, sometimes it's too late for taping, and surgery is necessary. By "surgery" I don't mean taking off the toe or any part of it. But surgical measures permit the toe to lie flat again.

The "hammer toe" is not anything to be worried or frightened about. But it hurts, and it's a nuisance, and it can be corrected.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have arthritis in my knees. Would I aggravate it by taking a hot bath an hour or so before I leave for work? — Mrs. M.A."

No. Hot baths and hot packs often ease the pain and stiffness considerably, and won't aggravate the condition. Aspirin in one form or another, taken before you leave for work, may help a lot.

Hemorrhoids can be cured! If troubled with fissures, fistulas, itching and other rectal problems, write to Dr. Molner in care of this newspaper requesting a copy of his booklet, "The Real Cure For Hemorrhoids," enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover handling.

Democratic Move Starts Hot Debate

State Administration Department Is Topic of Budget Disagreement

MADISON (AP)—A Democratic motion to restore $354,644 in financing for the State Department of Administration triggered a heated floor debate as the Wisconsin Senate renewed consideration of the 1961-63 state budget Friday.

Zen Richard Zaborski, D-Milwaukee, called the Republican Assembly's action in cutting the amount from the $1.1 million appropriation to the department "a wild political strike at the state agency which has done the most to make the state's business orderly and efficient and to keep the state's costs down."

The Department of Administration was created more than 18 months ago in a merger of five state agencies, including the bureau of purchasing, personnel bureau, the department of planning, the departments of engineering and budget and accounts. In general terms it is referred to as the "housekeeping" agency. Gov. Gaylord Nelson appointed his former financial advisor, Joe E. Nusbaum, as the department's initial commissioner.

Charges Sloppiness

Sen. Jerris Leonard, R-Milwaukee, delivered a most bitter attack on the agency. He accused the department of "sloppy bookkeeping" and a reshuffling of state agency personnel—primarily in the conservation department—that has "confused everybody in Madison."

Leonard also assailed the department for a "conformist philosophy" that dictated the subordination of individual enterprise.

Sen. Horace Wilkie, D-Madison, said Leonard showed "unmitigated gall" in saying that Democrats are not independent thinkers.

Assembly Cut Request

"We all know that there is a lockstep agreement among Republicans that they are going to go out of this session in outright opposition to a budget that is adequate to meet the needs of Wisconsin."

The budget before the Senate has a $493.5 million price tag. The figure represents a cut of about $11 million from the $503 million budget which Nelson recommended.

About half of the reduction came in the area of higher education when the Republican - controlled Assembly refused to go along with the governor's recommendation that University of Wisconsin and state college faculty salaries be increased 10 per cent in each year of the coming biennium.

The Assembly set the faculty increase figure at seven and five per cent.

The Golden Years

Retirement Key for Men: It's the Wife

BY THOMAS COLLINS

"Dear Mr. Golden Years:

"I am one year and 10 months out into Indian Country, approaching 67, and clutching my pension.

Collins

"I am also working, at about the best retirement job there is. But that is the last chapter of my story. I want to tell you, or somebody who can pass it on to others, the story of what can happen to an average business man when he retires to spend the leisureyears of his life at home.

"I retired at 65 after perhaps a year and a half of planning what I would do. The house was paid for. The pension and Social Security would add up to $289.74. There was a bit over $6,000 in the savings account.

Good Company

"I didn't really want to do anything. I didn't have to. Not just because there was enough money. There was nothing at home I wanted to get away from. I liked my wife. My wife liked me. We each thought the other was good company. For 44 years of marriage we had thought so.

"And my wife wanted me to come home. She said she would take care of me better than the company would.

"So, for a year and a half I juggled a few retirement plans. Then I decided this was a lot of exertion. And I glided up to the pension party feeling fine.

"Mama and I took an auto trip, had some gay conversation about there being no more Mondays in our lives, and made our way back home after 16 days of motels. (After six nights in six motels you've had it.)

Household Routine

"Mama returned to her household routine. . .and it was a specialized routine that had evolved in her life after the last of the children left home nearly 15 years ago.

"She made the beds at 9:15 every morning (which was one cup of coffee after I left for work). She cleaned the carpets, took out the garbage, changed the towels, washed the dishes and watered the flowers after that (which was while no husband was in the way). She went to market, had her soup, took her nap and had her bath all in accordance with her specialized routine (still while no husband was around).

"Does any man nearing retirement ever realize what disorder he is going to bring to a wife's life when he comes home? Most husbands don't really know what their wives do all day. Nor does any man ever understand that this desire to sleep late in the morning, to put on a gay hat and go for a walk after breakfast, to watch a baseball game on TV at nap time will do violence to a routine that has become second nature to his wife?

Withered Away

"I tried. My wife tried. But the compatibility that had flourished when I had been absent 10 hours of the daytime withered away. Two big feet that had to be told to move every morning for the vacuum cleaner, and ash trays that heretofore had stayed clean from eight to six became symbols of frustration in our home.

"I went back to town to hunt a job

"Through my church, I came in to contact with a reserach organization which did all sorts of surveys for magazines, stores and manufacturers of consumer products. Many of these surveys were made by pushing doorbells with a questionnaire, or speaking with housewives on the phone.

"I asked for, and obtained, a job with the organization as a part-time surveyor and still have it. Normally I work five days a week, from four to six hours a day. I can take off a day or a week. On the other hand if I choose I can work up to 50 hours or so a week. I'm paid by the hour.

"For a retirement job, as I said earlier, it is about the best there is. . .freedom, enough pay to forfeit Social Security, enough contact with people to bring home stories at night.

"But with a second chance at retirement I would play it differently. At about age 63 I would start cultivating a double-headed way of life. . .Mama and me. This would involve the basic chores of existence, such as eating, sweeping, sleeping and laundry. We would do these as a team.

"It would involve cultural pursuits. We would cultivate similar tastes in music, movies, TV, books and all the rest.

Joint Effort

"It would involve, most importantly of all, a joint effort to accomplish something with out leisure. Probably something that pays, like jointly operating a small store; jointly raising sheep, parakeets or ponies; jointly developing a flower business.

"My wife and I would operate as one person, together in everything. There really is no other way. A man is sentenced to his wife, and vice versa, when he retires. When the man tries to continue the old pattern, which is to get another job for himself, he merely delays the inevitable.

get an ELECTRIC DISHWASHER

Here's the way to get out of the kitchen . . . fast . . . after mealtime. An electric dishwasher gives you more time to do other things around the house. Your hands stay out of hot water, too. This will help keep your temperature down on hot summer days. And it's the hot water that counts in getting dishes really clean. Your dishwasher uses water HOTTER than your hands can stand.

For new homes or older homes, dishwashers are available in either undercounter built-ins or portable models.

A Time to Remember

Armed Forces Day, today, May 20, and Memorial Day, May 30, are times all of us should think — think of our 965,572 men killed defending this country throughout its history and the 1,276,520 wounded.

It is time to remember Saratoga, New Orleans, Chapultepec, the Wilderness, San Juan Hill, Belleau Wood, Okinawa, Inchon. The names of this nation's wars have been the names of victories.

The names of our dead have been the names of our fathers, husbands, sons.

The price of freedom has been collected on the battlefield from each generation of Americans. We, as a nation, cannot question the necessity, but we can, we must question the human cost. It has been too high . . . far higher than it had to be. Into none of the eight wars we have fought have we gone with our nation and its fighting men adequately prepared.

In 184 years the United States has fought the Revolution, War of 1812, Mexican War, Civil War, Spanish-American War, World War I, World War II and the Korean War. Yet for all those 184 years our Republic has prided itself on its refusal to maintain large standing military forces. It has been unfair to the men who fought. Each time we have met war's first onslaught with almost our bare hands. When World War II came we had 120,000 army regulars to meet a crisis that took 10,420,000 to resolve.

Seven times this nation studied the lesson of war and seven times it forgot war when the dirty business ended. More than 600,000 men who had faced fire in World War II were called to receive a second baptism of fire in Korea. Yet more than a million and a half non-veterans who had since come of age never fought because they could not be made ready. We paid in Korea by having to claw our way back from the brink of humiliating and potentially disastrous defeat.

Today this nation is prepared — it has accepted the ugly fact that your husband, brother, son must protect this nation through ready active armed forces, trained citizen reserves and a pool of standby reserves adequately trained to be called from civilian life at any moment.

So these days of commendation to our armed forces cannot pass without thought.

Give credit and thanks to the millions who today don military dress whether once a week, two weeks every summer or for years of their lives.

Give thanks and prayers to those thousands who lie beneath white crosses in the fields of some 15 nations — give thanks because they are our liberty and the backbone of our democracy.

We continue unrelenting in our abhorrence of aggression and tyranny. But, we have accepted the hard principle that it is better to stand with a gun in hand than to kneel with a knife at our throat.

Recognition of Red China

The new United States Ambassador to India, Harvard economist John Kenneth Galbraith, has said that United States recognition of Red China and the admission of the Peiping government to the United Nations are necessary for peace in Asia. It has been apparent that many other advisers of President Kennedy hold the same opinion. Wisconsin's Young Democrats have recommended a review of the entire situation. On the other hand, the conservative Committee of One Million is strongly opposing what its spokesmen fear is the assumption that recognition of Red China is inevitable.

We must realize that there are separate questions here at stake. One is the recognition of the Peiping government as the de facto regime in China by the United States government. The other is whether the U.S. should continue to oppose the admittance of Red China to the U.N. In the long run, both questions must be answered on balance and, while to some extent they depend upon each other, the situations differ.

As these columns have previously related, we would not be in such a turmoil about recognition if we had continued our earliest and traditional practice of recognizing another government when it obviously had control of the territory involved. This continues to be the British point of view. But, beginning with President Woodrow Wilson, we began to try to make recognition an instrument in our attempts to influence other governments. Recognition then became a sign of our approval. This is an unfortunate assumption but one that is hard to live down today.

If we had never made it a policy to withhold recognition as a sign of distaste, if we had taken the older viewpoint of accepting the existence if not the survival of a de facto government, we would not be in this position. But we cannot turn back the clock. If we now recognize Red China, how much of the world, particularly the Asian nations like the Philippines and South Viet Nam who have so consistently fought Communism, will assume that Red China now meets with our approval or that we fear its strength? Our recognition of the Soviet Union, for instance, after more than a decade of rejection, came to be regarded as a sign of our approval and friendship.

Quite obviously if we do not recognize Red China diplomatically, it will be difficult for us to back its admission to the United Nations. But this is a different matter altogether. There is nothing in the United States Constitution which forbids us to deal with bandits. The U.N. Charter, on the other hand, is very specific about the type of government it admits. We may argue that any of the Communist members, and a few others which cling to dictators, hardly suit the definition of peace-loving nations. But Russia has been a member from the very beginning. We are not concerned so much with the aggressive nations which already are on the inside. They are not a good reason for admitting another.

Arguments in favor of admitting the Peiping government stress that China would have to make concessions such as "guaranteeing" the independence of Formosa before it could be accepted and this would be a step toward peace in the area. But this accepts Red China's Communist rule for all time. What might have happened to the world if Hitler's Nazi regime had been accepted once it had bombed Poland into submission? There might not have been World War II. There would not have been any justice or hope on the continent of Europe either.

The main reason for admitting Red China to the U.N. is based upon fear of another massive war—a poor base for any negotiation.

To date the climate of opinion in the United States — at least in the middle west — is such that, were Red China admitted to the U.N. we would have to withdraw and that would be a death blow to the U.N. We may argue that such tremendous decisions should not be made in the obvious emotional context; but the emotions of conflict are not easy to discourage and we doubt that they should be.

We dicker today, behind the scenes as it were, with Red China on Laos, on the Formosa Straits, on disarmament. If it were possible to re-create our national policy of recognition without inferring either approval or fear we could advocate it. This does not seem feasible.

But there seems to be no valid reason at all why the clear cut ideologies of the U.N. Charter should be casually tossed aside as they must be if Red China is seated at the U.N.

Looking Backward

2 Vessels, Battery in Skirmish

100 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Motor for May [illegible], 1861.

Washington — There was a fight at Sewall's Point between two U.S. vessels and a rebel battery, it being the eighth and [illegible] work now in the hands of the rebels defending the approaches to Norfolk.

It is regarded as an important work against blockading the James River, where there are now 20 prizes taken with tobacco. The tug Yankee (Union) arrived May 18 with three schooners in tow, all laden with tobacco. They surrendered to the Union vessel, Harriet Lane, off Cape Henry.

The Steamer Altona commenced Saturday noon shelling the work at Sewall's Point. She soon after was aided by the Freeborn, driving out the rebels. The Altona then proceeded to Washington with dispatches of Commodore Stringham.

The vessel captured two small vessels near Cedar Point, one of them having 50 men bound for the rebel army.

25 YEARS AGO

President Roosevelt signed into law the $572,[illegible] supply bill to carry on the activities of the War Department in the fiscal year beginning July 1. It was the largest peacetime appropriation for the nation's land forces.

Awaiting treasury estimates on the compromise revenue plan, the Senate finance committee discussed technical questions involved in the "windfall" tax provision of the House tax bill.

Miss Marie Ziegenhagen was elected president of Appleton Girls Club. Miss Jane Barclay was chosen vice president, Miss Mabel Rahn, recording secretary, Miss Inez Gurnee, corresponding secretary, and Miss Edith Van Stratum, treasurer.

Carl Schneider, Neenah, was elected vice president of the Winnebago County unit of the Wisconsin Cooperative Milk Pool.

Joseph Blair was elected president of a new unit of the Farmer Labor Progressive Federation. Walter Techlin was named vice president and Gust Sedo, secretary.

The United States Second division beat off vicious attacks by thousands of Chinese Reds on the bloody central Korean front.

President Truman's new appeal for national unity in the face of the MacArthur controversy was tangled alongside a Republican senator's "whitewash" charge against Democrats.

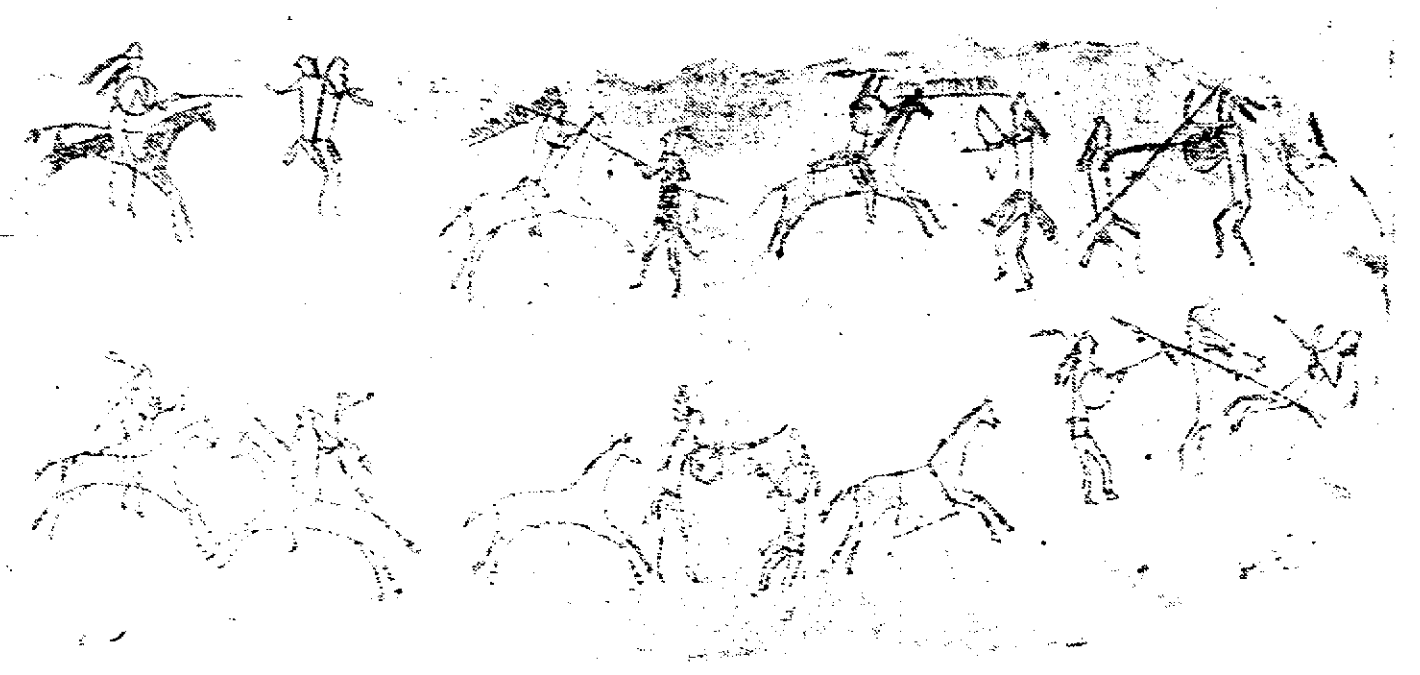
George T. Leary, Appleton, was appointed plant chief for the Appleton area of the Wisconsin Telephone Company.

Mrs. Fred Marshall, president of the Appleton Zion Temple Sisterhood, was elected president of the Wisconsin Federation of Temple Sisterhoods at a convention at Beth-el temple in Madison.

Mrs. Bernard Schouten and Mrs. John Van De Loo were chosen by fellow members of the Kaukauna Lady Knights of Columbus as delegates to the deanery meeting at Darboy Tuesday evening. Mrs. Lee Nagan and Mrs. Cyril Robedean were picked as alternates.

The Best of AMERICAN HERITAGE

The Redskin Who Saved The White Man's Hide



(Courtesy of Museum of the American Indian, Heye Foundation)

About 1875 Washakie Sewed two deer hides together and painted on them his war exploits against the Utes. No one knows whether all the encounters depicted took place on one raid, or on several separate expeditions.

BY SIDNEY O. REYNOLDS

Gen. George Crook resisted the impulse to consult his watch again. Why didn't Washakie come?

The place was near Sheridan, Wyoming Territory, on June 11, 1876. Crook was campaigning against an alliance of Sioux, Cheyennes, and Arapahoes led by Chief Crazy Horse. They outnumbered him four to one.

Crook knew he would need Indian reinforcements. Two hundred Crows had arrived that afternoon. The Shoshones also had offered the army full cooperation against their common enemy, the Sioux. Washakie had never broken his word yet — but where was he?

Then, over the noises of the heavily fortified camp, Crook heard the alarm call. A large body of horsemen was rushing down the steep slope from the west. The Shoshones had arrived.

Moving west, the army crossed the Tongue River. Suddenly the Shoshone and Crow warriors shouted, "Sioux! Sioux! Heap Sioux!" Then they whirled to give battle.

Attack Broken

As the enemy swept down on the main concentration of the army, the Shoshones, with a disengaged wing of the infantry, swung into the Sioux horde. With a wild howl the Crows smashed into the opposite flank, and the impact of the attack was broken.

When Crazy Horse made his final surrender, he told Crook that he had no less than 6,500 fighting men in the field that day. Had it not been for the Shoshones and the Crows, he said, the army would have suffered the same fate that Custer and the Seventh Cavalry were to endure on the Little Big Horn less than a fortnight later.

A few months after this battle, Washakie and his veterans helped Col. Ronald Mackenzie defeat the Cheyennes. That was the blow that led to the swift defeat of Crazy Horse. Chief Washakie's promise to the United States government had been fulfilled.

The man who was to become known as Washakie was born at the turn of the century among the Flathead Indians, his mother a Shoshone, his father a Flathead.

When a full-fledged warrior, he joined the eastern Shoshones, and there met his first American whites. The great trading rendezvous, from 1825 to 1840, was held near Shoshone country and he probably never missed one.

Handsome Indian

There he would have met such men as Kit Carson and Jim Bridger, and Father De Smet and Marcus Whitman, the missionaries. Washakie was first called to the attention of the authorities in Washington by the early Indian agents.

One agent thus described the chief: "He is quite tall for a Shoshone, easily six feet, of lighter skin than average and the most handsome Indian I have yet seen. He is, however, a man of blood. Another chieftain of the tribe bears a formidable scar in his forehead where Washakie struck him with a war club in an altercation over tribal policy."

By 1850, Washakie was head chief of the Shoshones. He had a following of some 1,200 well-mounted, well-equipped Indians. Their travels led them over a huge area, mostly in Western Wyoming. His admission standards were high. Treaty-breakers, horse thieves, and pilferers — that is, of white man's property — were kept out. He was beginning to give aid and protection to the increasing stream of settlers.

The swarms of emigrants, the rapidly spreading Mormon settlements, and constant harassment by enemy tribes being pushed further into his country convinced Washakie that the days of the nomadic life were about over.

Dreams of a Valley

More and more he besought the Indian agents for a treaty and a reservation. When asked his choice of a site, he always answered that he wanted the "Warm," or Wind River valley at the eastern foot of the Wind River Mountains. There the ponies stayed fat the year around, and the buffalo never left. There were the mineral hot springs where the Indians had always treated their ills.

In 1851 the government, in an effort to settle the strife on the frontier called in all the Plains Indian tribes for a general council at Fort Laramie. Though the eastern Shoshones were not to be included, Washakie decided to make the long journey through dangerous enemy country. At Fort Laramie he had the bitter disappointment of seeing the Crows given everything from the big Horns to the Wind River Mountains, including his much-desired Wind Valley.

By the mid-50s Washakie had regular details of warriors doing duty on the Oregon Trail. These hard-riding patrols covered the trail from South Pass to Fort Bridger, giving aid and protection to the long wagon trains of exhausted men and women from the east.

Washakie Became Chief of the eastern Shoshones about 1850 and ruled them until his death in 1900. A rugged warrior, he promised to keep peace. ". . . for as long as the sun shines, the grass grows and the rivers flow."

The treaties signed at Fort Laramie proved to be a waste of effort. More whites hungry for soil or for the gold that might lie under it were crowding in on the domain of the Indian. But the government finally recognized the right of the Shoshones to the land on which they had always lived. A commissioner was sent to meet Washakie and purchase or trade for a right of way through his lands for the railroad (Union Pacific) soon to be built. Washakie was delighted that the Great White Father was at least ready to treat with him. For a few wagonloads of supplies and a promise of future annuities, right of way was granted.

The subject of the Wind River Valley was brought up. But Washakie said: "I would like the Warm Valley for my people. But you gave the Warm Valley to the Crows and until you can give title from the Crows, I will not consider going there."

Then gold was discovered. Four camps quickly materialized. Unfortunately for the miners, the Sioux war trail down the Wind River emerged right in the heart of the diggings. The scattered whites were easy prey.

Seek Washakie

The army moved in and established Fort Stambaugh, a 1,000-man cavalry post. But even this strong force couldn't keep the hostilities in check. In addition, the army and the Bureau of Indian Affairs were receiving a very bad time at the hands of the nation's press. They needed help, and they thought of Washakie.

Gen. C. C. Augur met the Shoshones at Fort Bridger on June 30, 1868. He told them that the White Father was now in a position to give them the Wind River Valley, because the Crows had broken the treaty of 1851.

Washakie asked for schools, churches, and a hospital, for the day when the buffalo would be gone.

Conflict With Crows

When he made his mark on the long treaty, Washakie was swearing that "for as long as the Sun shines, the grass grows and the rivers flow," the eastern Shoshones would keep peace. In return the govern-

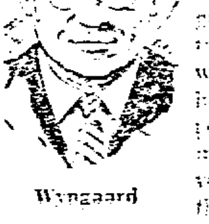
Gov. Nelson's Prestige Enhanced in Defeat

BY JOHN WYNGAARD



Wyngaard

MADISON — Gov. Nelson's plan for extensive reorganization of the administrative services of the state government has fallen before the assault guns of the Republican legislative majority, and its author is probably less surprised than most about the failure of the proposition.

Gov. Nelson is too experienced a hand in the partisan competition to have had any illusions about the prospect for his ambitious blueprint of reshaping the government to bring the number of agencies down to about 20 and to permit him the initiative in getting the revolution underway. No political system that can be easily imagined would be likely to authorize such a move, when the authorization must come from a legislature controlled by one party which is warily watching the governor who espouses the cause of a rival party.

What the governor was doing here, we may be permitted to guess, was to dress up his political image. Every politician who is going anywhere must have a theme, a dominant purpose in his public course, to impress upon the mind of the voter. Gov. Nelson doesn't like the spending tag that the GOP has tried to fasten upon him. He has spent thousands of words, for example, refuting the idea that although his budget is biggest in history, it really is a thrifty and conservative one, and one that actually may be too cautious.

EFFICIENCY TAG

His espousal of administrative reorganization in the name of operations efficiency is a part of that same thematic package. Nelson had the considerable good fortune, moreover, to have a committee of businessmen, working as advisors to his department of administration, urging upon the state a reorganization after this general pattern.

It was to be expected that the businessmen's committee, regardless of individual membership, would be critical about the helter-skelter pattern of state services organization.

There are perhaps 75 to 80 separate departments in the state government, give or take half a dozen or a dozen. Businessmen like tidiness in organization, effective lines of command. They are answerable only to their boards of directors. They have little conception of the problems of politics in the organization of government, the distrust of a legislature toward unusual powers in the hands of a governor, the influence of the bureaucracy within the departments that resists any kind of disturbance or inconvenience, and other inevitable consequences of public administration.

Yet the result of this incident has been to give Nelson the raw materials for campaign speeches in his future election years. He tried to install some kind of business administration sense into the Madison hodgepodge, he can say, but the Republicans wouldn't let him.

THE MERIT

Politics aside, there is merit in the idea of simplifying the patternless condition of the state government.

If the state was being established today, a legislature that would set up as many as 80 separate administrative empires would be laughed at by its constituents.

Any casual observer of the inside of the statehouse can name half a dozen examples of conflicts of jurisdiction, purpose, and actual activity. The number 20, which Nelson suggested as a proper total for separate agencies, was perhaps a guess. But it is a far more reasonable guess than the 80 or more that exist today.

Yet these are not inanimate things that are involved. These are departments staffed by men and women, who have influence, who frequently command potent civilian lobbies, and who can be disturbed only when there is a strong pressure. That pressure can only come when the state administration is united under a single political party with a decisive electoral mandate and some evidence of popular support, or popular interest, at the least.

These conditions were conspicuously lacking this year.

Doubts Castro Real Head of Anti-U. S. Drive

exact number of prisoners may never be known. Estimates ranged upwards of a quarter million.

A civilian engaged by secret police to count prisoners in the area of headquarters, told us privately he had often heard the figure of "over 147,500" detainees in Havana alone.

Castro Status in Doubt

The interrogation at the secret police headquarters and my presence at an exchange between a G-2 guard and the Papal Nuncio, Msgr. Luis Centoz, seemed to bring strikingly to mind an oft-repeated remark that Castro may have lost control of his own revolution.

On the evening of April 19, two days after I was arrested in the New York Times office, I was summoned for my first interrogation.

A young, clean-cut and apparently well-indoctrinated officer sat before me.

"You are charged with conspiring against the democratic governing against the democratic government of Cuba," he said. "Can you prove that you were not conspiring?"

This was my first realization my detention was not a mistake and chills went through me as I groped for an answer.

"In a democracy," I started, "the burden of proof—."

The officer broke in coldly, "This is a democracy. A real democracy. Yours is but a sham. You are a tool of a wealthy minority."

And he went on and on for at least 20 more minutes and the interrogation was over.

As I was moved out into a corridor I nearly collided with the papal nuncio. He apparently had come in an effort to obtain the release of the auxiliary bishop of Havana, Msgr. Eduardo Boza Masvidal, and other priests detained with him.

The armed guard, barely in his twenties, was poking a finger into the chest of the aging, thin nuncio, who wore a look of utter consternation on his face.

"You," he spoke harshly (using the informal Spanish "tu" instead of the more respectful "usted"). "You must remember there are no special privileges any longer, not even with Fidel's intervention. Fidel has nothing to do with these matters."

Military in Charge

The guard was a member of the militia, Castro's right arm. It has replaced the once "glorious rebel army" whose members are mostly in prison or discharged now. In La Cabana, the death row was occupied by 151 rebel army officers.

The militia and the way it worked in the first days after the April 15 bombing of Havana's military airport seemed to prove a point often brought up by students of the Cuban scene: that it was organized for the specific purpose of rounding up suspicious citizens at the first sign of trouble. Castro himself has repeatedly called on the "citizen soldiers" to organize "revolutionary defense groups block by block."

"End of Imperialism"

The roundup was swiftly carried out.

But Castro may have reaped a storm with the results.

"Whatever happens," said a prisoner in La Cabana, "our country will never know peace under this regime. What's the use of getting out of prison if you are but a prisoner outside?"

On the way to G-2 headquarters when I was arrested the afternoon of April 17 I sat between two young officers in civilian attire. A long convoy of armed militiamen wound by.

"Isn't that a marvelous sight?" one of the officers said. "Soon you'll see this in Mexico and Venezuela. Eventually you will see it in your own country. This revolution is but the start of the end of imperialism."

The Redskin Who Saved The White Man's Hide

ment guaranteed that the eastern Shoshones could have forever the Wind River Valley area for their exclusive home.

When the Shoshones moved into their new home, the frontier was still unsettled. One Crow chief in particular began systematically attacking the small summer hunting camps of the Shoshones. Washakie took to the field with a crack troop of warriors. In the middle of the fight he met the chief with a shock that unhorsed them both and they fought on the ground with knives. The Crow soon lay dead at Washakie's feet. The battle ended the wars between the Crows and the Shoshones.

Washakie's request for Christian training for his people was answered when Father John Roberts was sent to the Wind River reservation by the Episcopal Church. The chief and the clergyman became great friends, though Washakie was not baptized until late in life.

The treaty of 1896 was the last he was to sign. Officials asked the Shoshones to cede the mineral hot springs at what is now Thermopolis, Wyo., and about 50,000 acres for public use. Washakie was willing, but asked that part of the waters be set aside for the free use of all men of all races, creeds and colors. This was included in the treaty.

When the signing was held, Arapahoes who had squatted on the reservation were asked to come forth and sign. Washakie said, "This is Shoshone land. The Arapahoes own nothing here."

"But," the agent persisted, "it is the White Father's wish that the Arapahoes sign too."

Washakie crashed his fist down on the table and shouted, "All right! Let them sign. But under their marks write it down that Washakie says no."

Big Award in 1937

Long after his death, Washakie's strongly worded protests proved of tremendous value to the Shoshones. In January 1937, the U.S. Court of Claims awarded the Shoshones four and a half million dollars in damages suffered from the presence of the Arapahoes on their lands. With the accrued interest, this has grown into a tremendous sum.

When he was past 90, Washakie suffered a slight paralytic stroke. Now he had to be helped on and off his horse. He continued his rides until his vision was destroyed by a furious sandstorm.

Finally, on the evening of Feb. 20, 1900, Washakie called his family to his bedside. When the grieving family left the room they saw his lips silently moving. They knew he was singing his death song.

On Feb. 22 a funeral cortege, a mile and a half long, reached the military cemetery at Fort Washakie. Troop E of the First U.S. Cavalry snapped to attention. The pallbearers, both red and white, gently removed the flag-draped coffin from the caisson and placed it at the grave. Father Roberts, assisted by the Rev. Sherman Coolidge (a full-blooded Arapahoe), read the Episcopal burial service. All that was mortal of the battle-scarred chief rests deep in the snow-covered soil of his beloved Warm Valley.

Rebels Retain Old President

takes a direction of which he disapproves.

In lightning raids during the night South Korea's military rulers jailed members of deposed Premier John M. Chang's cabinet and generals who refused to back Tuesday's coup.

The ousted premier, 61, reportedly talked himself out of arrest. He defied military police trying to take him to prison and demanded they produce a warrant signed by junta leader, Gen. Ghang.

U. S. Gen. Carter Magruder, the supreme United Nations commander in Korea, reportedly has demanded that South Korean military units which defied him in overthrowing the elected government return immediately to their positions.

U.N. Authority Affected

An authoritative source also disclosed Magruder has insisted that South Korea's new military leaders restore to their posts a number of top generals purged by the ruling military junta—or that they be replaced with generals acceptable to him.

Sources close to Magruder said the U.N. command feels that while use of troops in the successful coup did not weaken South Korea's defenses against the Communist North it undermined the authority the U. N. command has exercised since the start of the Korean War in 1950.

The new military regime decreed strict anti-Communist measures, saying increased activities of the Communists and their sympathizers brought "clear and present danger to the nation's security."

Activity Outlawed

Any Communist activity is outlawed in South Korea. The new measures are similar to those vainly sought by the ousted government and led to protest demonstrations.

Tightening its grip on the capital, the junta fired elderly Seoul Mayor Kim Sang-don, replacing him with Brig. Gen. Yoon Tai-il, one of the five engineers of the coup.

Freed Cubans To Ask Ransom For Captives

SOS saying, "They sank us, they sank us."

Offers Exchange

After repeating his proposal to trade prisoners for bulldozers "as compensation for the damage caused by the invasion forces," Castro asked his audience whether he had its approval. The crowd cheered noisily.

Castro also offered to trade the leader of the invasion forces—Capt. Manuel Artime—for Francisco (The Hook) Molina, a Cuban now awaiting sentence in New York City on a second degree murder conviction.

Molina was convicted of slaying 9-year-old Magdalena Urdaneta of Venezuela during a gunbattle between pro and anti-Castro elements in a Manhattan restaurant.

The Molina case has been widely played up in Cuba as a politically inspired judicial decision based on U. S. hatred of Castro.

The prime minister said the most important prisoners now in Cuba would be returned last, but only after he had received the last lot of bulldozers.

Besides Artime, Castro is holding Jose Miro Torra, son of Jose Miro Cardona, who is head of the anti-Castro revolutionary council, and Carlos Varona, son of Antonio Varona, who is another exile leader.

In 1960 the quarterly sales were $84 million and net earnings nearly $3.5 million.

Congress Cautious On Kennedy's Trip

Feel That Khrushchev May Use Meeting Merely for Propaganda

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of Congress are keeping their fingers crossed about the outcome of the forthcoming meeting between President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

Beneath the expressions of support for Kennedy and the generally cautious optimism reflected in comment, there is a core of uneasiness about what might happen at Vienna.

This seems to be based primarily on the unpredictability of Khrushchev and his demonstrated ability to make propaganda out of almost any occasion. Nobody has forgotten his breakup of the Paris conference a year ago nor his abusive treatment of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Some Republicans obviously wonder how Kennedy would cope with some similar incidents. Most Democrats think he will be able to take care of himself.

In this connection, Rep. Thomas M. Pelly, R-Wash., said Democratic leaders ought to try to persuade Kennedy to call off the conference.

On the other hand, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, the assistant Senate Democratic leader, said he isn't worried about Kennedy's being able to hold his own.

"The President is well-informed, unemotional and firm," Humphrey said. "He will give a good account of himself under any circumstances."

But among both Democrats and Republicans there was the feeling that Kennedy is going into the talks at a disadvantage because of the Soviet man-in-space accomplishment, the Cuban invasion disaster and the situation in Laos.

Gloomily, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., said that Khrushchev "seems to have most of the marbles."

Khrushchev Arrogant

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois observed that "Khrushchev is rather arrogant" at this point. Dirksen cautioned Kennedy against any "placatory attitude on anything where a basic principle important to the interest of the United States and the free world is involved."

There was general agreement that the results of the conference are likely to be meager.

For this reason, Chairman J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said he hopes there will be "as little fanfare as possible" about the session—a desire not likely to be fulfilled.

Heinz Plans Summer Newspaper Ad Promotion

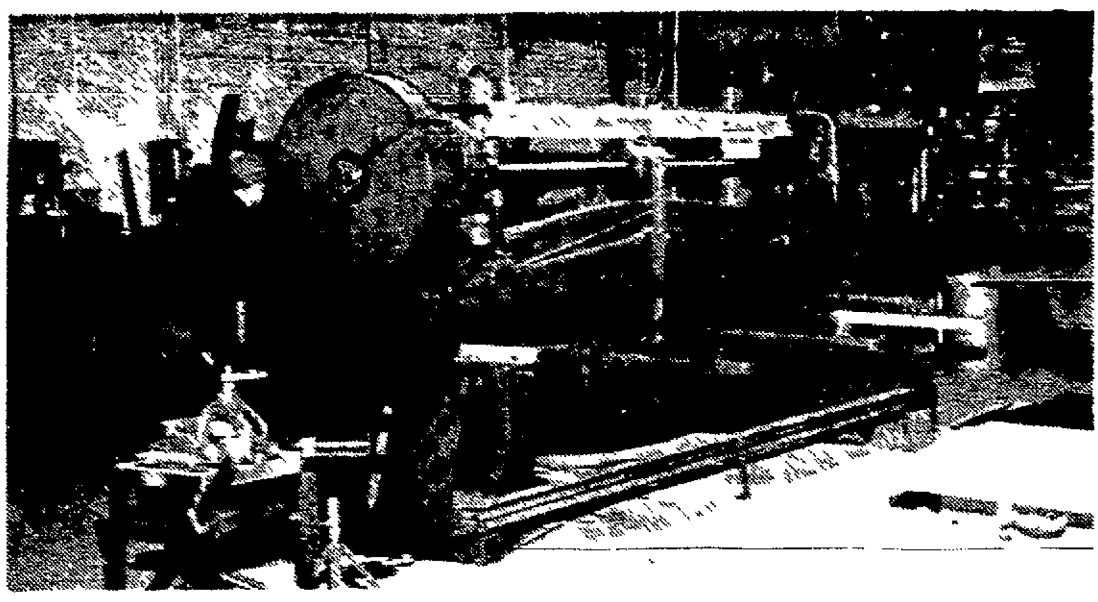
Planning a summer full of picnic and patio meals? H J Heinz Company is offering to pick up part of your grocery bill.

The "57 Varieties" firm will send a coupon worth 30 cents on the purchase price of buns, rolls, hamburger, or hot dogs to consumers who forward two labels from any of the Heinz relish product line. The offer will extend from now through Sept 30, a period which includes the three major "outdoor" holidays — Decoration Day, July Fourth, and Labor Day. It will be backed by depth newspaper advertising support in the Appleton Post-Crescent.

Details came from Richard Patton, Heinz pickle product manager who said that the promotion is designed both to move merchandise in volume and to provide the retailer with "tie-in" opportunities in many other departments of his store. "In addition to buns and meat," Mr. Patton said, "the promotion invites display of other luncheon meats, fruit, baked goods, snack foods, condiments, and other popular picnic and patio fare."

Heinz expects both the retailer and consumer to benefit from the 30 cent offer, Mr Patton added. The coupons are redeemable in grocery outlets only and for hot dogs, hamburger, rolls and buns.

Maxon, Inc., of Detroit is the Heinz advertising agency.



A Power Shear to Handle 10-gauge steel sheets 10 feet long and ⅛-inch thick, is the newest addition to the equipment of August Winter & Sons, Inc., 1216 W. Wisconsin avenue, local heating and air-conditioning firm. The new shear, shown in the picture above, weighs 13,000 pounds, and offers substantial savings to customers, due to the time saved in fabrication as the result of more accurate cutting. Phone number at August Winter & Sons, Inc., is RE 4-7144.

Time is money because qualified mechanics today demand and deserve good wages, according to August Winter & Sons, Inc., 1216 W. Wisconsin avenue. The use of good equipment and labor saving tools like the power shear, can mean offering more for less to Winter's customers, the firm said.

In addition to sheet metal fabricators, the company also offers the services of qualified pipe fitters, certified pipe welders and factory-trained service mechanics who are five-year graduate apprentices.

It is company policy and desire, the firm said, to perform all work so that upon its completion they are able to point to the job with satisfaction and say, "Look at the job; August Winter & Sons were the contractors."

Mr Winter said that the most important consideration at all times is to gain the confidence of his customers for continued friendly business relations. He asks that readers call if they want a job done well. The telephone number is RE 4-7144.

The Best Part of Summer is the planning of picnics with family and friends. Picnic pals are being featured by the Elm Tree Bakeries again this year and include potato wiener and potato hamburger buns. They can be found at any of Elm Tree Bakers' retail stores.

The Memorial Day weekend officially begins the picnic season in the Fox Cities area. Elm Tree Bakeries is again featuring two items of its "Picnic Pals," the potato wiener and potato hamburger buns.

Everyone knows the delightful flavor and lightness of the potato rolls and now they come in the convenient shapes designed to compliment roasted hot dogs and grilled hamburgers.

Elm Tree Bakeries has a large variety of rolls and buns to go along on summer picnics. In addition to the new potato wiener and hamburger buns, there are also bratwurst buns, steak buns, parkerhouse and cloverleaf rolls, all of which will find their way into many picnic baskets this summer.

Picnics can be fun for all, and if the food is good, the lunch easily prepared, it seems that the added enjoyment will make the day seem even more perfect.

Elm Tree says that mothers find it easier to keep hungry children happy with nutritious energy-building Elm Tree buns — delicious for all the family.

Christians Have Three Views on Mission Work

Some Denominations Hold That They Must Convert Others to the Faith

BY LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Why do Christians send missionaries to people who already have a religion of their own?

That question troubles many church members. It comes up in nearly every discussion of foreign missions

In answering it, a Christian necessarily makes a choice among three different attitudes toward non-Christian religions. And each of these attitudes has theological implications which go far beyond the immediate question of missionary effort.

Called Exclusivism

One viewpoint is sometimes called "exclusivism." It was widely held in the 19th century, and is still the official doctrine of many bodies. Its adherents believe that no man can be saved except through conscious faith in Jesus Christ.

They recognize no real values in other religions, and they are convinced that all non-Christians are going to hell however hard they try to live uprightly by their own lights.

People who hold this view are likely to have a tremendous sense of urgency about proclaiming the Christian Gospel to those who have not heard it. It is no accident that fundamentalist denominations pour far more money and manpower into foreign missions, in proportion to their size, than other Christian groups.

Opposite View

Recoiling from exclusivism some American church members have gone to the opposite extreme. They have adopted what they regard as a broad-minded and tolerant view which has the effect of putting all religions on an equal footing. A popular expression of this attitude is that "it doesn't matter what a man believes because all religions are merely different pathways to the same goal."

People who hold this view — which theologians call "syncretism" — are likely to feel that it is arrogant and presumptuous for Christians to send missionaries abroad. If they support mission programs at all, they want the emphasis placed on providing schools, hospitals and other humanitarian services, rather than trying to win converts.

The third view lacks the all-or-nothing simplicity of the other two. It has never acquired a convenient label, and it cannot be adequately defined in a few words. But it is held today by a large body of Christians, including such noted theologians as Karl Barth, Paul Tillich and Reinhold Niebuhr.

Believe St. Paul

These Christians believe, with St. Paul, that God has never "left himself without witness" at any time or in any part of the world. They recognize genuine spiritual insights and high moral values in all of the great religions through which men have sought to know God.

They acknowledge that many non-Christians live by Christian precepts more truly than some professing Christians. And they remember that Jesus Himself said that "not every one who says to Me 'Lord, Lord' shall enter the kingdom of heaven, but he who does the will of My Father."

But they emphatically do not go along with the syncretist idea that "one religion is as good as another." They are convinced that in Christ God has revealed Himself to man fully and finally, in a unique and incomparable way. They believe that the word which God spoke to man in Christ is not the private property of those who happen to find themselves within a religion called Christianity, but that it is a universal message, valid for all cultures, relevant to all men, the fulfillment of all that is good and fine in other religions.

Thus, they say, Christians are impelled to missionary effort, not in an arrogant spirit of moral superiority, but in the humble role of message-bearers. They are proclaiming, not that they have found God, but that God has found them.

Military Man Blasts U. S. Handling of Cuban Attack

Coup Leader Tried to Halt Korean Revolt

General Chang Yung Asked U. S. Troops To Intervene

BY PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

The official leader of the South Korean Army revolt triee at the last moment to stop it by asking for U.S. troop intervention.

Highly qualified sources say the man who made the plea was Lt. Gen. Chang Do Yung, Korean Army Chief of Staff and Chairman of the Military Revolutionary Committee which toppled Premier John M. Chang from power.

He made it in the first predawn moments of Tuesday's coup to Gen. Carter B. Magruder, head of U.S. and United Nations forces in Korea.

Magruder turned him down.

Chang Figurehead

The sources say Chang is a figurehead and that intricate behind-the-scenes political negotiations which have followed the coup, show that the revolutionary committee may have had less strength than first appeared.

This is how they tell the story:

The real driving force behind the revolt was not General Chang as announced but Maj. Gen. Pak Chong-Hui, deputy commanding general of the Korean Second Army and now vice chairman of the military junta.

It was Pak who gave the signal for the assault. Chang almost instantly made his plea to General Magruder.

Quickly Refused

Magruder refused so quickly he could not have stopped to consult Washington. Presumably, he acted under standing orders for such a situation.

There is evidence that Chang played a middle and changing role. At one point before the coup he issued orders that no troops under his command would take part. During the weeks before the coup he sought a moderate course.

He did not at first back the rebel group. Nor did he call in outlying Korean troops either to support or oppose it.

Knew About Coup

There is strong evidence that Premier John M. Change had information on the coup weeks in advance, knew many of the leaders and that Pak was the ringleader. It appeared the premier did not know the extent to which General Chang, one of his most trusted officers, would be involved.

Only some 4,000 troops out of total army of more than 560,000 took part.

One contributing reason for this undoubtedly was General MaGruder's statement calling on the whole army immediately to restore control to the overthrown government. The American army always had had strong influence on the Korean military.

Had the United States appeared to support the coup, or even said nothing, there would have been a greater chance that army commanders outside Seoul would have joined the rebellion sooner than they did.

No Civil War

On the other hand, had they attacked the rebels, the result would have been civil war in a country already partitioned and a weakening of the border guard against the communist north.

Instead there began what one source called "the vastest political negotiations ever." Those negotiations still are going on in Seoul and all over South Korea.

In these, General Chang may play a key role.

The source said the rebel generals "are negotiating with the United States, with overthrown leaders, with other army officials and with each other."

Still Not Clear

It still was not clear which group would emerge on top.

The rebel camp is known to have planned its moves deliberately to coax U.S. support.

Rebel decrees stressed anti-communism and pro-Americanism. There was a pre-planned effort to limit bloodshed.

Only a handful of persons were killed in the whole revolt. There was no attempt to kill overthrown leaders. They were placed under detention and some were not rounded up at all.

In the negotiations now going on, several groups which could make trouble have not yet come forward. One group is the students, who a year ago toppled President Syngman Rhee. Another is the local communists. The North Koreans also have so far stayed in the background.

No One in Armed Forces Would Okay Plans, Naval Officer Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Navy officer, angered by efforts to blame top military men for the Cuban debacle, said today, "no military man in his right mind would have approved the plans that were carried out."

The officer, who cannot be identified, is well acquainted with the Navy's member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Adm. Arleigh Burke.

In general, the officer's opinion coincided with that reportedly expressed recently by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

What angered the Navy officer into speaking was the statement by Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., that "we direly need a new chairman and members" of the Joint Chiefs.

Chief Proponents

Gore's comment came after Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the Joint Chiefs, testified Friday in closed session before the Senate Latin American Affairs subcommittee.

There have been reports that Lemnitzer and Burke were the chief proponents of the anti-Castro Cuban invasion, which failed miserably.

The officer said he was "sick" of efforts to pin the blame for the Cuban fiasco on the military and the full story should be told.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has forbidden members of the Joint Chiefs to defend themselves in public or even to explain publicly the role of the military in the Cuban operation.

Eisenhower, at a meeting with Republican leaders at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm on May 1, reportedly wondered aloud if the Joint Chiefs had been consulted in any detail about the invasion.

Inconceivable Plan

He is said to have observed that some of the details of the invasion were inconceivable to him as a military man.

In any case, the Navy officer said, 'The Joint Chiefs did not fully staff the Cuban invasion," that is, they did not take part in the detailed planning.

Further, he added, "The Joint Chiefs gave their approval contingent upon the complete accuracy of the information supplied by the Central Intelligence Agency."

This CIA information, he said, "predicted a mass uprising in support of the invasion forces.

"If this information was incorrect," he continued, "the Joint Chiefs said clearly that the United States would have to support the invasion with sea and air power."

Plans Changed

In the end, he reported, "the plans for the invasion were changed and the Joint Chiefs were not advised of the changes. No military man in his right mind would have approved the plans that were carried out."

The April 17 invasion was carried out by about 1,200 men, GI-equipped and without air-cover save for a few lumbering World War II B26 bombers. They were opposed by some 30,000 regular troops armed with tanks and protected overhead by American-built jet trainers.

At one point it seemed clear that the Navy was prepared to support the anti-Castro forces if Washington gave the go-ahead.

Powerful Fleet

During and immediately after the invasion the Navy had powerful fleet units in the Caribbean —far more than would have been needed merely to defend the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

This force included the super-carrier Independence, which carries at least 75 of the rocket-armed Crusaders, fighter planes which can travel at twice the speed of sound.

In addition, there were 3,000 marines, organized into two battalion landing teams, within striking distance of the invasion beachhead at Cochinas Bay.

As late as April 20 there were enough jet aircraft at Guantanamo Bay, including a marine fighter squadron for close ground support, to make mincemeat of Castro's tanks and artillery and to flatten Havana with bombs.

Senator Flabbergasted

After the hearing Friday, Sen. Francis Case, R-S.D., observed, "I am flabbergasted that the military reputation of the United States could be laid on the line by persons not in the military."

While Case did not elaborate, he apparently had reference to the role of the Central Intelligence Agency in the planning of the invasion.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said, however, that both the CIA and the Pentagon should share the blame for the disaster since "both advised the President the plan was feasible."

The subcommittee chairman, Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., said the complete record of the hearing would be forwarded to President Kennedy.

Kennedy has said previously that he assumed full responsibility for the Cuban operation.

Now Is the Time to Buy a good used car, according to Jerry Griesbach, owner and manager of Griesbach Chevrolet Sales & Service in Hortonville. Shown above are some of the late models of every kind in the good selection of O.K. Used Cars at Griesbach's. Drive over and see the choice selection, Griesbach invites readers.

Yes, now is the time to buy a good used car. Griesbach says that because public acceptance on the new 1961 Chevrolet has been so overwhelming, they are far ahead of their normal sales. Our used car inventory is top-heavy, too many used cars, which must go.

"Instead of wholesaling these fine used cars to dealers, first we want to offer them at wholesale prices to our good neighbors," Jerry said today.

However, the firm warns that this sale is for a limited time only. The Griesbach Sales & Service in Hortonville urges readers to take advantage of these big bargains now before it balances out its inventory by wholesaling them to used car dealers.

Examples are 1957 Ford 4-door Fairlane 500—$795, 1956 Chevrolet 2-door Sedan—$595.

With the coming of nice weather, everyone wants to get out on the road and "see the U.S.A." Don't spoil your Sunday driving or vacation trip with a car that is in poor condition, Jerry says.

You Can Have Lots of Fun By Playing 'Famous People'

BY CAPPY DICK

The game of "Famous People" described as today's fun-project keeps all the players on their toes to be sure of staying in the game. There can be as many players as there are people on hand.

One player in the circle starts by thinking of some famous person. To illustrate, we'll use Abraham Lincoln. The player does not tell the name of the person he has in mind, but he does give one fact as a clue. For example, he might say, "I used to be a lawyer."

With that information as the only clue to help him, the next player must add a fact to the biography. He might say, "I used to be a storekeeper." However, had he not guessed that the first player had thought of Lincoln and had said, "I was a general in the American Revolution," the first player would have called out, "Wrong." Then in the second player, having made the error, would have to drop out of the game.

The game continues from player to player, each trying to secretly guess the name of the famous person and add some fact to the story of his life. Each player who makes a mistake must drop out and if a player can add no further fact he, too, must drop out. The game ends when there is only one player remaining in addition to the one who thought of the famous person in the first place. The remaining player starts the next biography.

If you prefer, you may play the game with animals as the subjects. For example, the animal may be a beaver and the first player might say, "I am prized for my fur." If the second player guesses correctly and says, "I build dams," he remains in the game. But if he thinks the animal is a fox and says, "I steal chickens," the first player says, "Wrong," and the second player will drop out.

Boating Violators Facing Crackdown

Many Owners Fail to Number Craft Correctly, Guardsmen Claim

NEW LONDON — The Coast Guard is cracking down on violators of the Federal Boating Act.

Chief Boatswain's Mate Arthur J. Zmyslo said here this week that 50 pere cent of the boating public is violating the law in one respect or another and the "grace" period is over.

Chief Zmyslo heads a four-man Coast Guard boarding party which has been checking boats in this area through the week. On Monday, the party moves to Winneconne where it will be for another week. On Monday, May 29, the party goes to Neenah-Menasha and on Monday, June 5, it will be in Oshkosh. Checks on boaters in the Green Bay area will be made starting Monday, June 12.

The major violation, Chief Zymslo said, is in the numbering of pleasure craft. The law says that the registration number on any given boat must be divided into sections. The first part consists of the symbols identifying the state of principal use, followed by a combination of numerals and letters which furnish individual boat identification. The group of digits appearing betwen the letters must be separated from these letters by hyphens or equivalent spaces. As examples: WS-1234-AB or WS 1234 AB.

The numbers must be placed on each side of the forward half of the boat in such a position as to provide clear legibility.

The numbers, Chief Zmyslo said, should read from left to right and should be in block characters of good proportion, not less than three inches in height. They must be of a color which will contrast with the background and be so maintained as to be clearly visible.

No Conflict

The federal law does not conflict with state regulations as they relate to numbering. If your boat conforms to state law then it will also satisfy federal authorities, the chief said.

While the boarding party is under orders to crack down on violators, Chief Zmyslo said he and his men will use good discretion in enforcement. If, for instance, the letters on a boat are slightly smaller than the three-inch minimum, the Coast Guardsmen would be inclined to overlook it providing the numbers were clearly visible and legible in every other respect.

The chief urged boaters to check their craft and read over the boating regulations to make sure they comply with the law.

State Boaters Newest Lobby At Capitol

Boat Association Claims to Speak For 15,000 Owners

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The pleasure boat owners of the state have evolved in the last few years one of the newest and most active of the legislative lobbies active at the state capitol.

The Wisconsin Boating Association represents the members of the scores of local boating and yachting clubs and in its representations to legislators says it speaks for more than 15,000 pleasure boat owners, or a substantial portion of an estimated 200,000 boat owners in the state.

The Association keeps a wary eye on legislative proposals and developments that it regards as hostile to the interests of pleasure boating. It has also advanced some measures of its own drafting that it has asked the legislature to enact.

Among its current objectives are to persuade the legislators to grant an exemption for boats ~~from personal~~ property tax assessments, to prohibit persons from riding in a boat being towed on the highway, and to impose penalties for littering of waters and shores.

President of the state-wide group is Willett S. Main of Milwaukee, a branch manager of one of the state government agencies there. Vice president is Carroll Gayhard of Oshkosh, and secretary is Carl N. Otjen of Milwaukee.

Among its general objectives is the elimination of the right of local communities to legislate separate and frequently confusing local ordinances on the operation and use of boats, and the enactment of a uniform state-wide boat regulation code.

Avalanche Buries 3 In Himalaya Mountain

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — Two Japanese climbers and a Nepali guide were buried by an avalanche as their expedition tried to scale 23,750-foot Mt. Langtang in the central Himalayas, according to a report received here.

The guide's body was recovered after the disaster May 11, but the Japanese are still missing.

No Prospect for Major Departure In Angling Rules

Commission Will Change Code At June 9 Meeting in Appleton

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON—The possibility of some change in the traditional rules against motor trolling by fishermen is the only prospect for departure in the state-wide fishing rules of the Wisconsin Conservation Commission.

The commission will set up the state fish and game code for the fall of 1961 and 1962 at its next meeting, scheduled to be held in Appleton on June 9. According to preliminary reviews of code suggestions by the recent county sessions of the Wisconsin Conservation Congress, the motor trolling question is the only one that has led to any significant proposal for modification of the existing sports fishing regulations.

Retain Ban

The outlook is for some liberalization in the anti-trolling rule, by the opening of additional lakes to such fishing methods. But the state-wide ban that has long been in effect is expected to be kept.

Sentiment for a relaxation of the trolling prohibition has been gaining, apparently because of the apprehension of some of the resort communities in the state about the loss of tourist patronage. Minnesota, a heavily competing state for the tourist trade, permits trolling.

But in the areas of tourist development where the muskellunge is regarded as the prime tourist attraction, including Vilas and Oneida counties in the northeast and Sawyer county in the northwest, local sentiment as tested by the Congress meetings remains firmly opposed to trolling. The contention of such opponents is that trolling would make muskies too easy to take and might deplete the musky waters.

May List Additions

This year a significantly large majority of the counties, 52, voted for repeal of the trolling ban, and 20 supported its continuation.

State fisheries division opinion on the trolling issue has been modified in recent years. Through its recommendation, the commission has permitted experimental trolling in specified lakes. Additions to the list of trolling lakes may be authorized this year.

Dr. E. W. Schoeberger, fisheries division chief, does not share the fears of some of his associates on the question.

"We have observed on these experimental lakes," he said here, "that trolling does not interfere with other lake uses, and that in fact comparatively few fishermen use the right to troll. We have also learned that they catch no more fish through trolling than by conventional methods," he added.

But members of the conservation commission over the years have been skeptical of such mechanical fishing methods, and in preliminary comments recently have indicated that they have not changed their views. They may concede trolling rules for additional and carefully chosen waters, but they are likely to postpone action on state-wide repeal of the trolling prohibition until there is a clearer expression of public sentiment, according to the quasi-official view here.

Might Deport Honor Student At Washington

SEATTLE (AP) — A young Hungarian refugee, whose brilliance in the University of Washington has won him two scholarships, may have to be deported.

If someone can't find a way for him to remain legally in the United States, the Immigration Service plans to send him back to Brazil when his student visa runs out June 12.

"I'm worried sick," said 22-year-old Andrew Furesz. "The only relatives I have outside of Hungary are my aunt and uncle."

They are Mr. and Mrs. Tibor Furesz of Seattle. Furesz fled from Hungary in 1956 after the revolt. He went to Sao Paulo, Brazil, to live with his grandparents. Furesz came to the university in June, 1959, and now his grandparents in Sao Paulo are dead.

Offshore Wind Provides Ideal Conditions for Beaching Boat

BY JOHN BOHANNAN

It's fine to have a dock handy when you're about to land a boat, but sometimes there's none to be found.

An offshore wind provides ideal conditions for beaching a small craft. The boat is kept under easy control because the engine is working against the wind. As the shore is neared, the water is smoothed by the lee of the land. A man stationed in the bow can use a boat hook for sounding and fending off if necessary.

When the wind is blowing on shore it's a different story. Here we have no protection. The rough water will be with us right up to the moment of landing, and a landing should not be attempted in heavy seas. It doesn't take much to pound a small boat to pieces in a heavy surf.

Reverse Engine

Under moderate conditions, the engine can be reversed to take headway off for the last few yards, but a safer and more convenient system is to form the habit of dropping an anchor and easing yourself up the shore on the line.

This has two advantages. First, it's easier to control the boat and prevent it from broaching. Second, the anchor to weather offers a convenient means of pulling yourself clear of the shoal and breakers before starting the engine when you wish to make your departure.

With outboards, the motor can be tilted clear of the water and the boat eased in stern-first. The stern will be found more stable for disembarking, especially if you have to climb overboard and wade. With the bow to weather, there's less danger of being pooped by a breaking wave.

A small, light hull can be pulled up high on the beach.

Bend Anchor Line

If the boat is too heavy for this, a smart skipper can bend the anchor line to a buoy, shackle a block to the eye on the buoy, and reeve a line through the block with one end cleated to the the bow of the boat. Then he can pay out on the line until the boat is within wading distance, cleat the other end to the stern and carry the doubled line ashore.

By pulling on the buoy end of the line, the boat can be taken out clear of the breakers and the line secured to a tree or a stake driven into the ground.

To make departure, pull on the stern end of the line until the boat is within reach, then pull yourself out to the buoy, start the engine, weigh anchor and get under way.

Sometimes a convenient cove or sharp bend in the coast will provide trees properly located for "tying across" with bow and stern lines to keep the boat clear of the shore.

Never leave your boat unless it is protected regardless of how the wind shifts or how strong it blows. If the situation won't meet this test, stand by to shove off at first gust of mounting wind.

More liberties can be taken on the leeshore of a narrow river or small lake, but on an open coast the principles of good seamanship must be followed at all times.

Wants Deer Management to Remain in the Public Eye

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The deer management issue would continue in the public eye during the next two years under a proposal in the state senate bearing the name of Sen. Reuben LaFave of Oconto, the legislature's most severe critic of the conservation department's liberal harvesting programs.

LaFave has asked for the creation of an interim committee to study party permit methods and other schemes for reducing the deer surplus, for a report to the legislature of 1963. Both houses of the legislature have already approved bills to outlaw such special shooting measures for this fall and the fall of 1962.

Under legislative procedure, it is common to give the chairmanship of an interim committee to the legislator who introduced the enabling legislation creating it.

Tours Can be Conducted at Game Farm

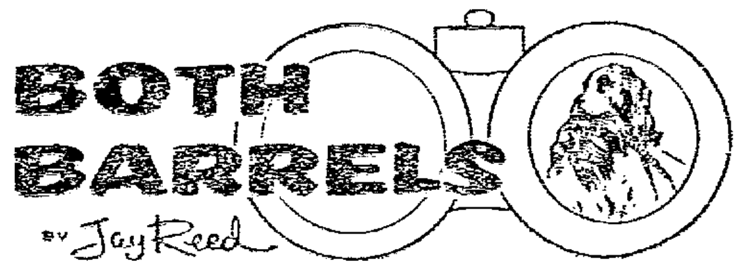
A new educational facility designed to teach the Wisconsin conservation story in depth has opened at the state game farm at Poynette.

The new haven, which is open to school and other groups interested in conservation, features a two-hour guided tour under the direction of a department naturalist.

The tour will move through an exhibit of 40 different species of birds, animals, and fish and take time out to browse a newly-organized museum of natural history which stresses the interplay of plants and animals on one another. Visiting students will walk a conservation nature trail, observe good forestry management practices and take a turn at pulling a handsaw or moving a log with a peavey, visit a model tree nursery, see wildlife game plantings, and inspect a "round-the-world" arboretum.

Free trees, furnished by Trees for Tomorrow, Inc., will be distributed to those visiting the arboretum during the planting season. Reforestation techniques and tree care will be demonstrated. Students of all degrees of proficiency are welcome, and each tour will be tailored to the age-level of the visiting group.

Tours are booked several weeks in advance. For information on scheduling, write the Wisconsin Department, Box 450, Madison, Wis.; Attention: Conservation Exhibit Tours.



BOTH BARRELS

by Jay Reed

A melancholy mid-May moon shone down like the baleful eye of a no-go spaceman one night this week as four men gathered in the basement of a S. Lee Street home. Sitting cheek-by-jowl around a circular table were a dental technician, a heating cooling specialist, a photographer and this reporter.

Larry Lawrence, 1125 W. Second St., president by mutual consent of this ne'er-do-well group, opened the discussion with a sober announcement: "High card," he said, "will deal." Nodding in solemn agreement, besides myself, were Ed Deschler, Jr., 520 S. Lee St., and Ralph Kaiche, route 3, Appleton.

—oOo—

Actually, we weren't there to play cards at all which in itself, as the Brunette pointed out, was unusual. We were, in fact, working out initial plans for a fishing trip to Canada. You'll be reading more of this venture on these pages in the next couple of weeks but these, basically, are the facts.

The four of us intend to drive into Ontario Province (the section just opened last fall), then go by boat deep into the bush, make camp and fish. We will do this on a long weekend. The purpose, as I have been trying to explain to my boss, is to show that four people can drive from the Fox Cities into Canada, fish in the deep bush and return—all on a long weekend. We will report on what equipment is necessary, how much food should be taken along and how much it will cost each member of the party.

—oOo—

The trip will not be a "rich man's" junket. (This is the part the boss likes best.) It will be the kind of a fishing trip within the reach of the ordinary angler who has always wanted to fish in Canada but figured he couldn't afford it. We'll travel light and, we hope, cheap. We'll pool our equipment. We'll eat what we catch except for a few basic food items we'll take along. These will be itemized in stories when we return.

The take-off date is Friday, June 9.

—oOo—

Outagamie County Game Warden Chuck Wranosky asked us to pass along this advice. This is the time of year when doe deer are dropping their fawns. If you should find a fawn in the woods, don't try to pick it up or molest it in any way. You might think the fawn has been abandoned but don't believe it. As a matter of fact, it's against the law to pick up a fawn and bring it home. So if you find one, just leave it alone. You'll be doing the animal—and yourself—a favor.

Deny Wish to Reopen Popple River Dam Case

A request for the reopening of the Popple River dam case in Florence County has been denied by the State Public Service Commission. The agency a month ago declined to issue a permit to the Elco Corporation of Milwaukee for the construction of an impoundment of the stream for real estate development purposes. The proposal was strongly resisted by some conservation interests.

Tips Given To Install Vinyl Floor

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: We have a vinyl asbestos backed linoleum on our kitchen floor. It is worn in spots and we are intending to put on a new floor covering. Where can I get information on how to go ahead and prepare the floor for a different covering? Do we have to take off the old floor covering and how?

A. Floor covering dealers usually have manufacturer's detailed instruction sheets available for applying their floor coverings; these include preparation of the floor surface and installation over old coverings. If the present linoleum adheres tightly all over and is smooth, although worn, most likely the new covering can be applied over it, following manufacturer's recommendations as to adhesive. Be sure the linoleum surface is completely free of all foreign matter such as wax, grease, grime, etc., first.

PLYWOOD CHECKS

Q. The siding on my home is of exterior grade fir plywood. How can paint be applied to adhere satisfactorily for a reasonable period? Within one to two years considerable checking and cracking of the paint occurs. Other homes in the area with the same siding have the same problem. Is this due to inability of plywood siding to hold paint without checking and cracking, or is there a specific method of application? We use premium grades of paint and follow recommended procedures for obtaining good paint jobs.

A. Fir plywood requires a special sealer-finish, available plywood dealers and large paint stores, to prevent raising the grain. I suggest writing to the Douglas Fir Plywood Association, Tacoma Bldg., Tacoma, Wash., for detailed painting instructions.

SOIL-PROOFING FLAGSTONE

Q: I have a home at the shore and will soon be living there permanently. There is a large front, full-length screened porch with a flagstone floor set in cement. The road dust makes the floor very messy all the time. Is there any kind of floor finish I can use? I cannot remove the flagstones as it is too hard a job and I cannot put more cement over what is already there as there is not enough room left.

A: The flagstones should be sealed with a concrete sealer-finish made by a nationally known wax manufacturer; this is available at janitor supply outlets and large hardware dealers. Then using either a polishing or self-polishing wax will give you an easy-to-maintain floor surface, which dust cannot penetrate.

Jacqueline Kennedy Should wear longer skirts, and Britain's Queen Elizabeth II should shorten hers, Emilio Schuberth, Italy's leading fashion designer, writes in an Italian magazine. The designer stated that with Mrs. Kennedy it's a question of knees. The queen wears her skirts longer than fashion dictates. Mrs. Kennedy is shown leaving a Palm Beach, Fla., church last March. The queen is pictured at a Red Cross children center in Rome earlier in the month.

Comments on Length of First Lady's Skirts

ROME (AP) — Italy's leading fashion designer says Jacqueline Kennedy should wear longer skirts and Queen Elizabeth II should shorten hers.

Emilio Schuberth says in the case of the U.S. President's wife it's a question of knees.

As for Britain's queen he tactfully made no judgment on kneecaps but said only that she wears her skirts longer than fashion dictates.

Writing in the Italian weekly magazine Oggi, Schuberth said:

"The first lady of America is elegant — but she should wear longer skirts.

"The kneecap is always anti-aesthetic even when—and this is not the case with Mrs. Kennedy—one has beautiful legs such as those of Sophia Loren or Marlene Dietrich.

"So," asks the Italian king of styles, "why does the first lady of America leave her kneecaps uncovered?

"We can see the effects in recent pictures. The heavy material in the pattern of the very short skirt and of a jacket, make her resemble a robot.

Our Children

Teach Youngsters to Ask Sensible Questions

BY ANGELO PATRI

We are accustomed to hearing that all questions the children ask should be answered. That is fine, but anybody who has lived with a child of 3 or 4 years of age will question it. How is one to answer the child who says "Why?" all day long when there is no answer but, "Because." Because it is so. Fire burns, water wets, and that's that. One answers as good humoredly as possible but when one is experienced, one soon finds something for this child to do, something to change his line of attention.

Ask Questions

Some children, somewhat older, often ask questions to get attention to themselves. They want someone, parent or teacher, to notice how good they are, or how interested in a subject they've become (one they know is approved) or that asking questions flatters the adult. Experience soon pinpoints these.

The questions that are of real importance should be thoughtfully, factually answered as far as possible. Sex questions are troublesome to most parents. The answers must be graded to the ability of the child to understand and apply them to his behavior. The very young ones need bu the simplest answer, no detail

Then there are the busy-bod questions, the prying questior that some children, interested i other people's private affair ask. Who was that talking on th phone? What did Aunt Polly te you about Susie? Who was tha man talking to Mrs. Gray? Th one that passed here and spok to you. Those questions need n answers but, "Is your room tidy Have you finished your hom work? Is it time to set the tabl — or take the dog out? And don ask questions about things tha don't concern you."

Then there are the questior lazy homeworkers ask. "Dac who was President in the War 1812?" "Mother, what's the defi ition for metaphor?" The answe to such questions are brief. "Loo it up in your textbook, or you reference book."

Children should be taught an early, to ask no useless question to first try to find the answer themselves before asking help. I is fine to be curious about thing but the curiosity should be d rected to the important matter of life and Nature, and not whim sical use of one's breath.

No. All questions need not b answered.

Factory Furloughs 500 Workers in Seasonal Layoff

Employment Picture in County Still Termed 'Good' by State

CHILTON — Despite the affects of the major seasonal layoff last week of an estimated 500 employes by Calumet County's largest industry, Lauson Engine Division of Tecumseh Products Co., New Holstein, the county's overall employment picture has been termed "good" by John P. Hume, head of the Wisconsin Employment Service's Manitowoc-Calumet District.

Hume warned the layoff should not be misconstrued as a reoccurring economic calamity for Calumet County since it is the least affected of the four counties involved.

He said the Lauson Company annually schedules a production cutback in May and reduces its labor force during the summer months with rehiring generally beginning in August.

Not Residents

Workers left jobless when an entire shift was taken off by the New Holstein firm, Hume said, were chiefly residents of nearby Fond du Lac County with some from Sheboygan and Manitowoc counties a well as a comparatively small percentage from Calumet County. They were workers with low seniority, he added.

The production cutback at Lauson, one of the nation's largest manufacturers of small gasoline engines, has had a moderate affect on the Chilton Metal Products Co. which, Hume said, has laid off about 30 employees. The Chilton firm supplies Lauson with fuel tanks for its engines.

The layoff at Chilton involves almost all Calumet County residents, according to Hume.

Registered unemployment in the county on May 1 was 162 persons, Hume commented, adding that he doubted if the figure has climbed to a total of 300 even though more than 500 persons have been laid off by the two industries since the first of the month. This bears out his viewpoint on the local effects of the layoffs and the general county employment picture.

Other county industries, Hume said, are doing well with some even adding to an already full employe compliment.

Construction firms are starting to hire now, he stated, and by mid-June canneries throughout the county will hire several hundred persons to cut unemployment to a minimum.

Fox Cities Gets Second Poison Control Center

Four Pharmacists Give Unit To Kaukauna Memorial Hospital

A second poison control center has been established in the Fox Cities through a gift of four pharmacies in Kaukauna.

The center was set up Friday at Kaukauna Community Hospital. A similar poison control center was opened at Theda Clark Hospital in Neenah about six months ago, a gift of Neenah and Menasha pharmacists.

The Kaukauna center includes a cabinet containing antidotes for almost every known type of poisoning, an alphabetical, cross-referenced list of cabinet contents and a text presenting information on the ingredients, toxicity, antidotes and follow-up treatment of more than 15,000 household and commercial products. Two other references listing antidotes and treatment for over-dosage of selected drugs are included. Others will be added as they become available.

Staff Luncheon

Arthur Mongin, Eugene Lange, Carl Johnson and Francis Strom, pharmacists, made the presentation to the hospital at a staff luncheon Friday.

Richard Strommen, assistant professor of pharmacy of that school's extension program at the University of Wisconsin, spoke of the importance of such a center. He noted similar centers in other communities and added other centers are in the process of being established.

The first poison control center was established in Chicago in 1953 and since, hundreds have been formed throughout the country.

Information Needed

Reliable, up-to-the minute information regarding contents of poisons, their possible toxicity and proper means of combating accidental poiosning must be instantly available to physicians when a mother reports a child has swallowed one of them. The poison control center supplies that information as well as all possible antidotes.

Each pharmacist will have on hand the text on which the control center is based and will be able to supply information in an emergency. Pharmacists will check the cabinets periodically to replace used items, spoiled or outdated matter to insure the center is always ready for immediate use.

Loan Company To Open New Addition

Drive-in, Walk-in Project Completed At $50,000 Cost

NEENAH — New drive-in and walk-in facilities, the result of a $50,000 remodeling project, will be opened Monday at Twin City Savings and Loan Association, 104 E. Wisconsin Ave.

The new facilities open onto an alley - drive between Wisconsin Avenue and Canal Street.

In addition to the remodeling, another step in modernization was taken with the installation of an electronic bookkeeping system, the first such system in a savings and loan association in Wisconsin.

Expansion plans of Twin City Savings and Loan started about a year ago with the purchase of an adjoining building at 109-111 E. Wisconsin.

Use Building

Part of that building is being utilized for the new facilities. The rest of the building eventually will be used as growth of the loan company warrants. All of the building will be remodeled.

A general clean - up program was undertaken in the alley bordering Canal Street. Shelters were built to house trash cans of neighboring business. Parking facilities also were provided.

Iveaux Anderson, president of Twin City Savings and Loan, said the present office facilities will continue to operate as they have in the past.

The Neenah loan company is the second largest financial institution in the Twin Cities with assets approaching $20 million. They have almost 10,000 accounts.

Laird to Refuse Chairmanship

Marshfield Man Can't Give Time to Campaign Group

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Rep. Melvin R. Laird, Marshfield, Republican representative of the central Wisconsin Seventh Congressional District, says he will decline the position of chairman of the Republican National Congressional Campaign Committee if he is nominated.

Laird made his statement to the Appleton Post-Crescent Madison Bureau, which recently reported the likelihood of an offer of the campaign leadership assignment to the Wisconsin Republican lawmaker.

Not Interested

Laird said he had informed Rep. Charles Halleck, Indiana, House minority leader and a member with Laird of the congressional campaign committee, that he is not interested in the committee chairmanship because it would conflict with his duties as a ranking member of the House Appropriations Committee.

Laird is already a member of the five man executive committee of the Congressional Campaign Committee.

The Wisconsin member said he feels he can make a larger public contribution by concentrating on his House committee work, including his assignment as a member of the sub-committees on health, education and welfare, and on national defense appropriations.

Extensive Travel

The campaign committee chairmanship would require extensive travel and public appearances away from the capital, he noted.

Laird said he is supporting either John Rhodes of Arizona or Jerry Ford of Michigan for the chairmanship of the party committee. Rep. William Miller, New York, present chairman, is expected to be named chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Illinois Couple Gives Appleton Land for Street

Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Langlois, Freeport, Ill., have given the City of Appleton a strip of land 40 feet wide and 1,230 feet long to be used as the west half of Lyndale Drive in the industrial park.

The city had owned only 40 feet for the east half of the road.

Mr. and Mrs. Langlois offered to sell the city a large tract of land last fall, south-west of the industrial park, as addition to it.

The city turned down the offer because it was felt that the property in the park should be sold before more is acquired.

The Illinois couple has told the city their land probably will be developed for industrial purposes some day.

Plan Must be Approved by Commission

BY JAY REED
Post-Crescent Outdoor Editor

MADISON — Wisconsin deer hunters will have a nine-day spike buck season next November if the state Conservation Commission follows the recommendation of its advisory Conservation Congress.

Delegates to the meeting here made their bid for an austere deer season in an almost perfunctory manner, unlike other years when the big game question precipitated hours of zesty, foot-stomping discussion.

But things were different this year. In an atmosphere of sachrine-like good fellowship the delegates approved most of the regulation changes asked for by the Conservation Department.

Change Atmosphere

One issue which could change the general non-combatant picture here will be handled this morning. Delegates must make a recommendation on whether to repeal the regulation which requires a permit for possession of high powered rifles in deer counties except during the deer season. Widely known as the M-40 law, the issue was set as a special order of business for later today.

The delegates roared near unanimous support for Gov. Gaylord Nelson's porposed 10-year program for recreational development. After the governor addressed Friday's session, the congress secretary was instructed to attend a joint legislative hearing here early next week, which is scheduled to take up the proposal. The secretary was told to make the legislators aware of the congress' endorsement of the proposal.

The breakin was discovered about 6 a.m. today by Fred Erdman, janitor at the high school. The money was taken from a desk in the library office.

Etnry to the school was gained by breaking two windows in the east door leading into the boiler room and teaching in an unlocking the door.

Windows were broken in office doors. Nothing was taken from the other offices.

Papers were torn off bulletin boards and strewn about the corridors. Several rubber plants in the school addition were knocked to the floor and broken.

Welcome Flags Slowly Vanish In Appleton

For the last month someone has been trying to chill the welcome that the city of Appleton gives to visiting dignitaries.

When a noted visitor is scheduled to arrive, welcome flags are flown over College Avenue. Lately, when street department workers have gone to collect them the next morning, they have found some missing.

Sometimes two or three have been stolen. Sometimes eight or nine. All of the flags have been taken from the east end of the avenue.

A Lawrence College student brought one into the Appleton Police Station yesterday. He was told by a dean to turn it in. Most of the flags have not been found.

'Kids Kolum' Cancelled Because of Crank Calls

The molester who has been calling young advertisers in the Post-Crescent's Kids Kolum has caused cancellation of that free want ad feature because it has inconvenienced the young advertisers.

In the last week, Appleton and Menasha police have received numerous complaints about the telephone caller. After the first few complaints came in, the Post-Crescent asked its readers to report the calls to the police or telephone company. Since then many more calls have been reported.

In the first calls, the molester asked females of any age who answered the phone to model for him. Then he started on the phone numbers of boys who ran ads. He suggested indecent activities to them.

Cancelled Friday

Because of the growing disservice to the young advertisers and their parents, the Kids Kolum was cancelled Friday, seven days after its first publication.

When the indecent calls first were reported, the Post-Crescent assigned classified advertising personnel to make calls to all the young advertisers' homes to warn them. The advertisers, especially those seeking baby sitting jobs, were told to talk only to women callers. They were told to hang up immediately on male callers.

Sheboygan Senator Asking For 19-Year-Old Beer Law

New Tack Aimed at Preventing High Schoolers From Drinking

BY JOHN WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

MADISON — The legislative controversy on the perennial topic of teen-age beer drinking will take a new tack soon with a proposal by a member of the Republican senate majority for a uniform state-wide law prohibiting the sale of beer to any person under 19.

Sen. Ernest C. Keppler, Sheboygan, said he has prepared a bill for introduction in the senate that would impose the new age rule and would also provide stiffer penalties for persons who sell beer illegally to minors and for minors who obtain it in defiance of the law.

Expects Support

Keppler said he expects to gather more support for his proposals than for others on the subject partly because of the recent report by the state department of public welfare certifying the social, educational and public safety problems associated with youthful beer buying and drinking.

Keppler said he is proposing a 19 year rule because the legislature has repeatedly indicated it is not prepared to raise the legal age for beer consumption in public places to age 21. Such a bill now reposes in a state senate committee file, and the house has several times refused by decisive vote margins to withdraw it for action.

Under present law a boy or girl who is 18 can buy beer, but municipalities are permitted to impose their own 21 year rule at their option. Keppler said he wants a 19 year old rule to apply everywhere, in order to attack the problem of young people in their automobiles leaving the 21 year rule jurisdictions to buy beer in outlying districts where the 18 year rule prevails.

Chief Problem

Authorities have said that one of the chief problems resulting from teen-age beer buying is the association of the act with the automobile, and that point was underscored again in the Welfare Department report to the legislature that was prepared at the request of the legislature under a resolution sponsored by the Sheboygan senator.

The department told the legislature that the consensus of the authorities it has consulted is that beer should not be legally available for high school students. Since at least half high school seniors are 18 years of age, the minimum should be 19 years to apply a beer ban upon all high schoolers, the report suggested.

Other key welfare department conclusions:

That uniformity in the law regarding the age for sale of fermented beverages to minors would be desirable, especially in curbing the problem of driving of autos while under the influence of alcohol.

Greater Screening

That greater screening and more controls over the issuance of licenses to operate taverns, especially those selling only beer would be wise.

That setting minimum as well as the present maximum penalties for violation of the laws relating to alcoholic beverages is needed.

The division of children and youth of the Welfare Department prepared its report after consultation with industry, church, business and other groups associated with the problem of beer distribution and consumption and after checking the experiences of the State Motor Vehicle Department, the Insurance Commission, the Beverage Tax Division and the Department of Public Instruction.

Most states have more restrictive laws than those now in effect here. Thirty-five have a 21 year beer age. The welfare department summary noted that "for all practical purposes, Wisconsin exists as an island among the states which surround us, since the bordering states all have laws which prohibit the sale of beer to anyone under the age of 21." An exception prevails in Illinois, which permits females at 18 and over to buy beer.

Crackdown on Expenses May Hit New York

Witness Says That Manhattan Could be 'Distressed Area'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposed government crackdown on expense account living, says a New York restaurant operator, might turn midtown Manhattan into a distressed area.

The threat that free spenders may lose tax-deductible expense accounts already has chased many of them from lavish restaurants and bars, Vincent Sardi Jr. said Friday.

The effects won't be limited to New York City if Congress follows President Kennedy's recommendation and sets tax limits for expense account wining, dining and entertaining, Sardi said.

Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., asked, "Are you suggesting midtown Manhattan may become a distressed area that would have to seek aid under this legislation we have just passed, and have its people retrained for different jobs elsewhere?"

"That may sound like an exaggeration but it really isn't," replied Sardi.

Sardi said setting a $4 to $7 limit on business entertainment meals and ruling out tax deductions on food and drink items not directly related to a business deal were going too far.

"Legitimate theater would be ruined," he said. "If you want to be nice to a businessman, you can't give him $10. That would be not only bad taste but practically illegal. But you can send him tickets to a show or take him to dinner."

Song Writer Dies In Chicago After Benefit Show

CHICAGO (AP) — Joe Howard, 79, veteran vaudeville star and writer of more than 500 songs including "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now", collapsed and died on the stage of the Civic Opera House last night while doing a benefit performance.

The famous song and dance man, who made his home in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., had just finished singing an encore featuring some of his hits when he was stricken.

The curtain closed and some in the audience were unaware the collapse was not part of the act. But his wife, Miriam and a number of doctors in the audience rushed back stage where he was pronounced dead.

Ironically, death came in the city where Howard wrote many of his perennial song hits and musical comedies in the early 1900s.

Delegates Okay Spike Buck Deer Season

came apparent at the meeting when delegates approved a resolution asking that enforcement personnel be given a more persuasive voice in writing hunting and fishing regulations. The resolution, submitted by Leonard A. Welch, Winneconne, asks that the policy of the Conservation Commission be broadened to include "recommendations of law enforcement personnel relative to management of fish and game and that such recommendations be given equal weight with other divisions."

In an attempt to lengthen goose shooting at Horicon Wildlife Refuge, the congress recommended that when 70 per cent of the kill quota has been reached this fall, the 2 p.m. closing zones on the marsh be closed. The kill quota, which will be established by federal authorities later this year, was criticized by Dodge County representatives who moved that Wisconsin accept no goose quota which is less than that provided for the Horseshoe Lake area in Illinois.

Last year Illinois hunters were permitted to shoot twice as many geese (14,000) as Horicon-Necedah marsh area. The motion, however, lost.

The delegates also voted to leave the motor controlling issue up to county option.

Permit the use of three ice fishing tipups on the Wolf River, Fox River from Eureka to Lake Winnebago and in all of Shawano County.

Readjust the cotton tail rabbit season to extend from Oct. 21 to Dec. 31 with the daily bag of two.

Continue the present 16-day statewide pheasant season with a daily bag of one rooster for each of the first three days and two per day thereafter.

Continue the present waterflow season of 50 days with a daily bag of three birds per hunter. The pilot waterfowl season will be established later this year by federal authorities.

The action taken by delegates here is advisory only. The full Conservation Commission will meet Appleton June 9 to establish final hunting and fishing regulations.

State Turns Down Bid to Lower Wages

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — The Wisconsin Farm Bureau Federation has been notified by the industrial commission that the commission has rejected its petition to reduce the minimum hourly wage rate for minors under 16 years employed in agricultural work from 65 cents to 50 cents an hour.

The order affects largely produce farmers near the urban centers of the state, it was explained. The Federation maintained that producers in other states might have an economic advantage because minimum wage rates in competitive states are lower.

Earlier the commission had agreed to permit piece work compensation as an alternative to the application of the minimum hourly wage rule, for the benefit of Door County orchard owners and other commercial fruit and vegetable growers.

The 65 cent an hour rule was imposed a year ago.

Traffic Fines Of Stolen Car Driver Cancelled

William J. Egbert, 43, whose most recent address was Menasha, was fined $165 for three traffic violations Wednesday but the sentence was withdrawn and Egbert was turned over for prosecution on a federal charge.

Egbert led police on a chase Sunday in a car police said was stolen. Two state patrol cars and an Outagamie County squad car caught him after he had driven over several lawns in Little Chute.

He was fined after he admitted reckless driving, failing to yield the right-of-way to an emergency vehicle and driving without a license, all results of the chase.

U.S. Commissioner Stanley Gabert Thursday bound Egbert over to a Milwaukee court for trial on a charge of transporting a stolen car across a state line. The FBI filed the charge.

After he was sentenced in Municipal Court, Acting Judge Stanley Staidl learned of the federal charge, withdrew the traffic sentence and charges and turned Egbert over to federal marshals.

Jury Decides UMW Violated Antitrust Act

Awards $90,000 to Small Coal Mine Firm in Tennessee

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — In a case which may make legal history, a federal court jury has ruled the United Mine Workers Union violated the Sherman antitrust act.

It was the first time, as far as lawyers in the suit have been able to determine, that a labor union has been adjudged guilty of antitrust violations on a national scale.

The jury yesterday awarded a $90,000 judgement to a small east Tennessee coal mine firm which had brought the civil action against the powerful Mine Workers Union and the trustees of the UMW Welfare Fund. Under antitrust laws, the judgment is automatically tripled to $270,000.

Conspiracy Alleged

Phillips Brothers Coal Co., a now defunct partnership, sued the union and the fund's trustees charging they conspired with large coal producers to monopolize the soft coal industry and force small firms out of business.

The firm said the alleged conspiracy began in 1950 and was carried out through the 1950 bituminous coal wage agreement, still the industry's basic contract.

While labor unions normally are exempt from antitrust laws, as Judge Robert L. Taylor put it in his charge to the jury, "if a union aids and abets businesses and firms" in attempting to restrain trade, the union comes under the jurisdiction of the statutes.

The jury, after 2½ days of deliberating, ruled both defendants conspired to monopolize the industry and restrain trade, damaging Phillips. The case went to the jury Wednesday after a month-long trial.

Appeal Probable

UMW attorneys said they would file a motion asking the court to set aside the jury's verdict and direct a verdict in favor of the union and the welfare fund. If the motion is denied, the attorneys said they would appeal.

The case stems from an action filed by the trustees against Phillips seeking $56,000 in back welfare fund royalty payments. Under the union contract, mines are required to pay 40 cents per ton of coal produced to the fund.

Phillips crossfiled, naming both the union and trustees, charging that the royalties were excessive, more than the firm's profits and designed to force small miners out of business.

Divorcees Accused of Violating Court Writ

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — Twenty divorcees have been ordered to court next Tuesday to show cause why they should not be held in contempt for violating a picket line injunction.

The women have been picketing the office of Herbert N. Heuman, Jackson County friend of the court, in protesting his policies in the collection of alimony and child-support payments from ex-husbands.

An injunction limiting the number of pickets to four was issued two days ago. Yesterday numerous defiant divorcees were back on the line.

Deputies served 14 of them with notices to appear in court. Six more were served at their homes.

The divorcees have accused Heuman of laxity. He has denied this.

Neenah Student Art Exhibit at Wilson

NEENAH — The annual art exhibit of Neenah High School and elementary student work will be on display at Wilson Elementary School next week.

The exhibit will be open for parents from 4 to 6 p.m. Sunday and 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday. It will be open to students all week during their regular art classes.

Bigger Home Planned For Curwood Firm

U. S. Loan, Debenture Issue Will Provide Funds for New London Plant

NEW LONDON — New London Development, Inc., has started selling $35,000 worth of debentures, to be coupled with a $130,000 loan from federal government's the Small Business Administration, to build a 21,600 square foot building that will be leased to Curwood Inc.

Curwood Inc. came to New London in April of 1959 and started manufacturing polyehthylene. Production started with four men on the payroll in the old Ice and fuel locker plant. As sales increased it moved its operation to a larger building on County Trunk S, formerly used by the New London Manufacturing Co.

It is now producing 120,000 pounds of material a month with 25 employees.

Laminating Machines

Most of the material produced is used for food packaging. Curwood has installed laminating machines and is now able to laminate the polyethylene film it produces to make cellophane, aluminum foil and other packaging materials.

The new plant, which is being designed by the Don Hougen architectural firm of Wisconsin Rapids, will be located on a 6½-acre site north of the city on Hocker Road near the Chicago and North Western tracks. It will have 15,000 square feet of manufacturing and warehouse space, 4,200 square feet of service and maintenance area and 2,400 square feet of office space.

Robert Woods, Curwood, vice president, said within the next few years production is expected to more than double and the payroll is expected to increase to about 50 or 60. Woods also said their products are used nationwide and salesmen have just been located in the Chicago and Cleveland areas.

5½ Per Cent Interest

A 12-year lease has been signed for the new plant with New London Development Inc. As soon as the debentures have been sold and the Small Business Administration loan has been approved, work on the new building will start.

The $35,000 in debentures that will be sold, which represents 20 per cent of the total cost of the project, is required by the SBA. The bonds will return 5½ per cent. The same interest rate will be paid on the SBA loan by the New London Development Inc.

The First State Bank will participate with the SBA in the loan and will hold the money collected from the debentures until the building project has been started.

Burglary Attempt

MENASHA — Attempted burglary of Fox River Valley Oil Co. at 320 Racine St., was reported this morning to police. No entry was gained to the building, although west side screen and storm windows were removed and the inner window frame showed pry marks. The station closed at 6 p.m. Friday and opened at 7 a.m. today. Nothing was reported missing.

Airline Elects 3 New Officers

Northwest Airlines, Inc., elected three new vice presidents and others to new positions. The 14 members of the board were re-elected in the annual meeting of shareholders.

New officers include Donald H. Hardesty, vice president-finance; Robert J. Wright, vice president-sales, and William Huskins Jr., vice president-Orient region.

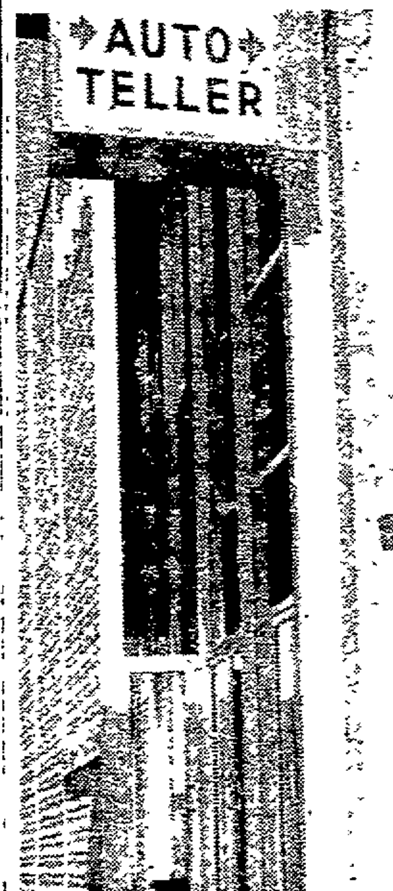
Paul L. Benscoter was reassigned to head a new transportation service department with headquarters in Minneapolis-St. Paul. The title of Frank C. Judd was changed to vice president of maintenance and engineering.

Directors also declared regular quarterly dividends of 20 cents a share of common stock and $.328125 a share on cumulative preferred stock, 5¼ per cent convertible series. Both dividends are payable June 30, 1961, to holders of record at the close of business June 15, 1961.

Court Grants Woman Divorce

OSHKOSH — Vivian E. Kempf, 27, Town of Winneconne, was granted a divorce from Chester Kempf, Minot Air Force Base, N. D., by County Judge Herbert J. Mueller Friday afternoon. She charged cruel and inhuman treatment.

The couple was married March 24, 1956, at Cheyenne, Wyo. A property settlement was arranged.



Friends and Employees gathered around Mayor Clarence Mitchell Friday when he cut the ribbon officially opening Appleton Building and Loan Association's new building at 320 E. College Ave. The building, erected at a cost of $650,000, has an exterior sun curtain of glazed tile which sheds dirt and snow. It also keeps out sun glare while permitting a clear view from the inside. A large time and temperature sign is on the front of the building.

Democrats Stop Final Passage Of State Budget

MADISON (AP)—Senate Democrats, through a parliamentary maneuver, today prevented the Republican - controlled body from giving final concurrence to the Assembly passed $403.5 billion executive budget bill.

As a result the measure will come up at 10 a. m., Monday, the first Monday morning for the Senate this session.

The Senate, after rejecting a series of Democratic authored amendments to restore cuts the Republican - dominated Joint Finance Committee made in Democratic Gov. Gaylord Nelson's proposal, advanced the bill to near final approval stage.

The majority party tried to put the bill up for final concurrence but Democrats had the votes to refuse permission to suspend the rules and permit final passage.

In the final vote on amendments the Senate rejected one that would have restored six of the 11 new positions asked by Atty. Gen. John W. Reynolds' office.

Heated floor debate preceded the adjourn-until-Monday motion. It was triggered by a Democratic proposal to restore $354,644 in financing for the State Department of Administration.

River Trips Once Again Catching Tourist Fancy

Fiberglas Float Boat Designed By Chain O'Lakes Dock Manager

WAUPACA — The closing of school and the opening of the boating season on Chain O'Lakes are related, owners of the boat livery businesses on the lakes have learned.

One of the older types of boating is once again becoming popular. This is a river float trip which has many of the thrills of pioneering associated with it.

L. E. Nelson, owner of Edmunds Boat Livery on Taylor Lake, has developed a special flat bottom skiff which he is introducing this summer "to retain the thrills but remove the spills."

Made of Fiberglas

Made of fiberglas, the new skiff is a wide 42 inches and 12 feet long. It seats two people and has floats built under the seats.

He currently is making 25 such skiffs. Initiating the boats today was the German Club of Neenah High School.

The German Club students boarded the little boats for a 10-mile trip on the Crystal River.

A group of Lawrence College men are scheduled for a float-trip down the Waupaca River Sunday morning. The Waupaca Conservation League grounds will be the launching site.

Canoe Trip

A group of St. Norbert College men are scheduled for a canoe trip today on Columbian Lake. Dave Wenberg has made the arrangements.

About 75 students and teachers from St. Mary School, Appleton, are scheduled for a launch trip from Edmunds Docks at 1 p.m. Wednesday. The Rev. Raymond Zagorski was in charge of arrangements.

The Hi-Y Club of Waupun is planning an outing June 4 when 25 river boats will be used. Harold TeBust is in charge.

A group of students from SS. Peter and Paul School, Green Bay, will take a launch trip at 1 p.m. Tuesday.

Activities also are picking up at Ding's Docks. Gordon Doerfler, owner, said a group of Lawrence College students will start arriving today for a variety of canoe trips throughout the lakes area.

Absence of Traffic

Last weekend a group of students from Oshkosh State College went on numerous canoe sorties.

One of the features of the river trips is the absence of other boat traffic and visiting wilderness-like areas.

The shallow water of the Crystal and Waupaca Rivers lends well to float-boating. The rivers also have sufficient current to add spice to the ride.

Churches Mark Pentecost in Special Rites

Jews, Christians Observe Special Day With Services

Jews, Catholics and Protestants are celebrating the holiday of Pentecost this weekend. In connection with it, many congregations have scheduled confirmation rites for young people completing religion classes.

Pentecost is so named because it falls about 50 days after Passover and Easter.

The Jewish holiday, known also as Shavuos, was originally a festival marking the appearance of the first fruits of spring planting. It also commemorates the giving of the Ten Commandments. Orthodox and Conservative Jews observe it for two days and Reform Jews for one day beginning at sundown today.

Will Be Confirmed

The Union of American Hebrew Congregations reports that 10,800 of its young people will be confirmed.

Christians observe Pentecost or Whitsunday as the day the Holy Spirit appeared to the apostles.

Catholics of the Green Bay Diocese have been holding a novena with evening masses for the nine days before tonight's vigil of Pentecost.

Assemblies of God observe Pentecost as National Membership Sunday.

Trinity Lutheran Church, Appleton, will confirm and give first communion to a class of 56 at 3 p.m. Sunday. The class gift to the church is red lectern and pulpit paraments.

Faith Lutheran Church examined 20 young people Thursday and will have confirmation rite at 10.30 a.m. Sunday.

Nineteen will be confirmed at Mount Olive Lutheran Church at 10.30 a. m. Sunday. Twelve will be confirmed at Riverview Lutheran Church at 10.15 a. m. Sunday.

Snead Widens Lead to Six

Gary Player Second At Half-Way Mark of Festival

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP)—The way the principal character is frisking about the golf course they might well change the name of this tournament from the Sam Snead Festival to the Sam Snead Benefit.

Snead stood virtually unchallenged today at the start of the third round of the $10,000 event. He was six strokes ahead of runnerup Gary Player at the halfway mark of the 72-hole event with a brilliant 129. And there seemed to be little chance he would be caught. He has won this tournament five times in the 14-year history of the golf show.

The West Virginia slammer has been pro here since 1936. While Snead was the big show, his 64 Friday was second best among the scores of the 69 contestants (two withdrew). Stan Leonard, the Canadian, wielded a red-hot putter to turn in a 63 for a 36-hole total of 136 and third place.

Others among the top 10 were U.S. Open champion Arnold Palmer who added a 67 to his opening 70 for a 137.

Tied at 138 were Chick Harbert of Miami, Fla., and two club pros Bill Ogden of Glenview, Ill. and Bob Watson of Elmhurst, N.Y.

Rudolph, Sanders Tied for Lead in Hot Springs Open

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — There was no clear-cut leader as the $20,000 Hot Springs Open Golf Tournament reached its midway point. Bespectacled Mason Rudolph of Clarksville, Tenn., and redhot Doug Sanders were tied at the top with 36-hole totals of [illegible].

After second round play Friday, the field of 94 professionals was cut to 60 with 18-hole rounds scheduled today and Sunday.

Sanders, winner of last week's Colonial at Fort Worth, and Rudolph [illegible] fired 4-under-par 68s to oust Buster Cupit and Art Wall Jr. from the lead they held after the first 18 holes.

Rudolph fired a smooth 33-35. Sanders used 27 putts and shot five birdies for 34-34—68.

[illegible] of Fort Smith, Ark., Bert Weaver of Daytona Beach, Fla., and Jerry Steelsmith of Glendale, Calif., were tied for third with [illegible].

Pigeons Meet Bulldogs

Marion High's Radies Nips Clints' Marshek, 2-1, for District Crown

MANAWA — Marion High's Jerry Radies shaded Clintonville's Curt Marshek, 2-1, in a torrid pitchers' duel here Friday afternoon for the championship in the Manawa district baseball tournament. The Pigeons won it in the last of the seventh.

Radies, a senior right-hander, allowed just two singles, struck out four and walked six. Marshek, a senior southpaw, fanned six and walked two, hurling a 5-hitter.

The triumph moved Marion into a play-off game with New London either Monday or Tuesday for a sectional tournament berth.

Clintonville grabbed a 1-0 lead in the second inning Friday when Jack Korb walked, stole second, was sacrificed to third by DuWayne Etheridge and scored on Gary Smith's sacrifice fly.

Ties Score

Marion tied it in the fourth. Radies singled, stole second and came home on Ferd Malueg's 1-bagger.

In the seventh, with no outs, Malueg walked and went to second when catcher Gary Johnson didn't get the "ball 4" pitch back right away. From second, Malueg scored on DuWayne Zimdars' double.

The game's only other extra base hit was a double by Marion's John Joln in the first.

Each side erred just once in the well-played contest. The two clubs had battled to an 0-0 tie in nine innings earlier this season.

Reds' Jim O'Toole Pitches 3-2 Win Over Milwaukee

Homers by Gene Freese and Gus Bell Spark Triumph

CINCINNATI (AP)—The five-hit pitching of Jim O'Toole and home runs by Gene Freese and Gus Bell sparked Cincinnati's come-from-behind 3-2 triumph over the Milwaukee Braves Friday night.

It was the fourth victory for the Reds over the Braves this year.

The loss was charged to Lew Burdette, 3-2, who gave up eight hits—including the home runs—and walked one.

Milwaukee was off to an early lead as Frank Bolling singled and scored on a double by Hank Aaron. O'Toole, who had given a walk to Eddie Mathews before Aaron's double, then filled the bases by walking Joe Adcock. But John DeMerit forced Adcock and O'Toole was out of trouble.

The Braves added another run in the third when Bolling hit his third homer of the season off the left field screen.

O'Toole blanked Milwaukee for the last six innings after yielding Bolling his third homer of the year in the third. Milwaukee was held to five hits, three of them by Bolling.

The Reds tied the score in the fourth when Freese homered after a single by Frank Robinson. It was the third homer of 1961 for Freese.

Bell hit his first homer of the season in the sixth, the ball sailing over the center field wall to put the Reds out front.

Only once after the first inning did Milwaukee get two men on base and only one of them passed second—Bolling on his homer to lead off the third.

Dodgers Rally Twice to Nip Giants, 8 to 7

San Francisco's Lead Trimmed; Phils Top Bucs

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

There may be virtually a whole new cast, but the Dodgers and Giants are still belting the bejabbers out of each other in a feud that had its start on the banks of the Gowanus in Brooklyn and on Coogan's Bluff in New York.

It was the Giants who snatched the National League lead from the Dodgers with a two-game sweep at Los Angeles almost a month ago. And Friday night the Dodgers twice came from behind for an 8-7 victory at San Francisco that trimmed the Giants' lead to two games and hoisted Los Angeles into a virtual tie for second place.

Cincinnati is the official runner-up at the moment (by .002 percentage points over Los Angeles) after rallying for a 3-2 victory against the Milwaukee Braves while Philadelphia skidded Pittsburgh to a close fourth, 4-1. The Chicago Cubs added to the woes of St. Louis by beating the Redbirds 1-0 behind the seven-hit pitching of Glen Hobbie.

Infield Hit

An infield hit by Maury Wills and a double by Wally Moon gave the Dodgers the deciding run in the ninth inning against losing reliever Billy O'Dell (1-2). Johnny Roseboro had capped a four-run eighth for the Dodgers, giving them the lead with a three-run homer that made it 7-6.

Starter Juan Marichal blanked the Dodgers on three hits for five innings, then gave up a three-run homer by rookie Willie Davis in the sixth. The Giants bounced back in the seventh when Harvey Kuenn's three-run double broke a 3-3 tie. Kuenn drove in the Giants' last four runs, hitting a solo homer in the ninth off winning reliever Ron Perranoski (2-0).

Woods Homers

Jim Woods' first homer of the year broke a 1-1 tie and triggered a two-run fifth inning for the last place Phils, who have won only three of their last 15 games. Pirate right-hander Bob Friend (4-4) lost his fourth in a row. Art Mahaffey (4-3) was the winning pitcher.

The Cubs scored in the first inning on a single and Ernie Banks' two-out pop up that dropped for a double when Card shortstop Daryl Spencer lost it in the sun. Chicago managed just two more hits off southpaw Ray Sadecki (2-3). It was the 10th major league shutout for Hobbie (2-4).

St. Louis now has lost five in a row, the last three by one run, but owner August Busch gave Hemus and General Manager Bing Devine a vote of confidence—a supposed pat on the back which usually turns out to be a kiss of death in major league managerial circles.

Papermakers Rally for 4-2 Victory Over Jays In District Finals

VanderVelden Hurls 5-Hitter, Fans 11 To Beat Prange

NEENAH — The Kimberly Papermakers rallied for three runs in the bottom of the sixth inning Friday afternoon to defeat Menasha, 4-2, and advance in 1961 WIAA eliminations.

The winners sent nine men to the plate in the big frame, with only one getting a base hit. With one out, Rick Polman was safe on Tom Zeleski's error and Dave Minten walked. Jeff Vander Velden then punched a single to right to count what was then the tying marker.

The 2-run margin was accounted for when Minten scored on an error and a run was forced across on a walk to Dave Kringle.

Cut Margin

A booming Peerenboom double and a Polman single cut Menasha's margin in the third. Menasha had scored on hits by pitcher Bill Prange and Bill Neubauer and a sacrifice fly by Bob Shukoski, in the third and on hits by Shukoski and Roger Schmidt, in the first.

Both pitchers went the distance with each allowing five hits. Vander Velden actually went seven frames, striking out 11 and walking none. His teammates committed three errors behind him.

Prange fanned eight in his six inning of pitching. He walked two but two costly errors were committed behind him in the fatal inning.

The next game for Coach Jim Nirschl's Kimberly nine will be against the winner of the Ripon district tournament.

Foxes Rally for 4 in Ninth to Edge Bees

McNally Will Hurl Tonight

BY JOHN L. PAUSTIAN
Post-Crescent Sports Editor

The 1961 Fox Cities Foxes seem determined to outdo their '60 pennant-winning predecessors in the engineering of dynamic finishes.

Friday night, the doughty Foxes staged their premier comeback of the young season—a 4-run uprising after two were out in the ninth inning—to turn back Burlington, 5-4.

The rally, which was climaxed by right-fielder Ed Napoleon's 2-run error on Jim Liggett's flyball, gave the Foxes their fourth straight win over the Bees and kept alive a fantastic 2 - year streak. Earl Weaver - managed Fox Cities teams have now beaten Harding Peterson's entries 16 consecutive times since June 10, 1960.

McNally

Caldwell

Dave McNally will pitch for the Foxes at 8 p.m. today as they wind up their current home stand against the Bees. McNally, an $80,000-plus bonus southpaw, will be making his first Goodland Field appearance of the season.

Fifth Uphill Win

Five of the Foxes' six home wins (in eight games) have been of the uphill variety—and last night's effort now heads the list.

Sam Bowens walked to open the bottom of the ninth, with the Foxes behind, 4-1. After "Nellie" Cochran popped out and John Griffin skied out, Burlington's Fred Newman was within one retirement of a nifty 4-hit victory.

The odds for Newman seemed ever better, because the next batter was Dick Yencha, who in 14 previous contests had never garnered more than one hit a game—and he already had singled in the seventh inning of last night's game.

Yencha, however, slapped one out of reach of the shortstop, sending Bowens to second. Jim Caldwell batted for reliefer Dick Tetrault and whacked a single to left, scoring Bowens and sending Yencha to third. Joe Pulliam chased in Yencha with his first hit of the game—a single to left center—and the potential tying and winning runs were on.

Lefty Pete Sala replaced Newman, a right - hander. Chuck Smiley, a southpaw swinger, worked Sala for a walk to fill the bases. Jim Liggett, who had driven in the winning run in the previous night's 13-inning game, hit a long fly to right. Napoleon pedaled back in time to grab it, but the ball fell out of his glove, enabling Caldwell and Pulliam to breeze home.

Zephyrs, Don Bosco Play in Semi-Finals Of State Meet Tonight

Patzner Defeats Waukesha Catholic Nine, 4 to 3

BY RALPH MUELLER

MENASHA — The tantalizing pitching of Gene Patzner and a three-run fourth inning enabled the St. Mary Zephyrs to move into the semi-finals of the State Catholic High School baseball tournament here Friday night as they beat Waukesha Catholic, 4-3.

The Zephyrs will face Milwaukee Don Bosco, an 8-1 victor over Milwaukee Pius XI, in the 7:30 semi-final affair tonight. In the 2 p.m. semi-final game, Stevens Point Pacelli, a 14-5 winner over Beloit Catholic, will meet Madison Edgewood, the tourney favorite and a 10-0 victor over Superior Cathedral in Friday's action.

6-Hitter

Patzner successfully scattered six hits over the seven-inning route to gain the victory. He struck out only three batters but had his opponents hitting the ball on the ground most of the evening. Ten of the 21 putouts were on infield ground balls.

He displayed marvelous control in that he only walked one batter, Bronson Haase in the fourth, and hit one batter, John Maretich in the second.

St. Mary tallied the markers in the fourth on a lead-off homer by Phil Keller, a walk to Paul Mix, a sacrifice by Paul Meier, and run-producing singles by Patzner and Bill Starr.

Grabs Lead

Waukesha grabbed a lead in the third when two Zephyr errors and a single by Bob Bertoli ccounted for one run. St. Mary tied the count in the bottom of the frame with the help of a single by Jim Koerner and a double by Bill Becker.

The losers scored single tallies in the fifth and sixth to close the gap to the final count of 4-3. Only one run scored on three hits in the fifth as Koerner saved a marker with a perfect peg to catcher Becker at the plate to nip the sliding Pat McCaffery.

The single run in the sixth was the result of a home run by Haase.

The best pitching performance of the quarter-final games came from three Madison Edgewood hurlers, who blanked Superior Cathedral on just two hits. Mike Sweeney went the first four without allowing a base hit and Cathedral gathered one each off Dennis Sweeney, who went two frames, and Dave Caulum, who went one inning.

John Renk paced the Edgewood hitters with three for four. Tom Kechtges, Mike Sweeney, and Jim Hayes collected two each for the winners.

The Edgewood pitching was to get a stiff test in the semifinal

Richter Homers Twice as UW Triumphs, 5 to 0

MADISON (AP)—Pat Richter's pair of two-run homers and right-hander Ron Krohn's seven-hit pitching powered the University of Wisconsin to a 5-0 shutout over Indiana in Big Ten Conference baseball Friday.

Richter got his first homer in the sixth inning to smash a scoreless deadlock. It soared over the left field fence.

Krohn, a sophomore, gained his third conference victory. All have been shutouts.

Advise Crandall to Give Sore Arm 10-Day Rest

Del Unhappy With Newspaper Reports He Isn't Trying

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Catcher Del Crandall of the Milwaukee Braves was told Friday to keep his troublesome right arm completely inactive for a week to 10 days.

"The doctor told me he thinks we have tried to throw the arm out long enough," Crandall said. "It needs rest."

Crandall's injury was diagnosed as an injury to the tri-cep muscle of the arm. His previous injury was an inflamed shoulder tendon and has been corrected.

Not Happy

The star catcher said he wasn't happy with some newspaper reports that he really wasn't trying to throw while with the team because he was afraid the arm would act up.

"I've been throwing for 10 days now and have been making every effort to throw out the soreness just as I did in 1953," Crandall said. "Nobody is more anxious for me to get back in there than I am."

Crandall said he has been throwing every day as hard as he possibly can and that none with the club has even tossed a hint in his direction that he could be doing better.

140 A Year

"I've caught on an average of 140 games a year for the last eight years," Crandall said, "and never once have I wanted anything different. I've played with a bad elbow, a banged up ankle and a sprained back and now someone says I'm not trying. That's a lot of baloney."

Crandall has not caught in a game for Milwaukee since April 20 because of the inflamed tendon and now the muscle injury.

General Manager John McHale and Manager Charlie Dressen huddled Friday to see if they could find some way to ease the catching chores for Charlie Lau, who has been filling in for Crandall.

Kersemeier, Ulwelling Win Heats

MONMOUTH, Ill. (AP) — Defending champion St. Olaf remained the favorite to win the Midwest Conference track title but Lawrence and Monmouth provided the thrills in Friday's preliminaries.

Don Kersemeier of Lawrence and Gene Brooks of Monmouth scored wins in two events.

Kersemier and Brooks both finished first in separate heats of the 100 and the 220 yard dashes.

Mike Ulwelling of Lawrence and Harvey Flodin of Beloit won heats in the 440, and Gene Crandall of Knox and Dave Campbell of Monmouth were winners in heats of the 880.

All finals events are slated for today.

Yankees' Pitching Fails Again in 9-7 Loss to Indians

Minnesota Wallops A's, 11-1; Angels Dump White Sox Twice

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When the New York Yankees can't win with hot bats, there has to be something wrong. And there is. The starting pitchers are shaky and the bullpen is bare.

The defending American League champs now have scored seven runs in each of two consecutive games — but they've lost them both, barely holding on to second place after three times blowing leads in a 9-7 loss at Cleveland Friday night. The Indians sewed it up with a five-run eighth inning against three Yank relievers.

Manager Ralph Houk hasn't had a complete game from his staff in 13 starts. And the bullpen group has lost four while the Yanks have dropped eight of their last 11 decisions since holding a share of first place with the Detroit Tigers two weeks ago.

Idled by Cold

Detroit, idled by cold weather at Boston, regained a five-game bulge as the Yankees lost their third in a row Friday night. Cleveland and the Minnesota Twins, who walloped Kansas' A's 11-1, remained in a tie for third place, also five games behind Detroit and within 004 percentage points of New York.

Baltimore defeated Washington 4-2, and the Los Angeles Angels, after losing seven straight, swept a twi-night doubleheader from the Chicago White Sox 4-3 and 5-3.

The Yankees backed starter Bob Turley and Luis Arroyo, the first of the relievers, with home runs by Roger Maris, Yogi Berra and Hector Lopez at Celveland and had a 7-4 lead going into the eighth. Then the Injuns came up with four consecutive hits, the fourth a tying two-run single by Chuck Essegian off losing reliever Tex Clevenger (3-2). The deciding run was forced home when Jim Coates hit Woody Held with a pitch with the bases loaded.

Vic Power, who had three of Cleveland's 15 hits, closed the scoring by stealing home — his first steal of the season—as the Indians beat the Yanks for the first time in 13 decisions going back to last July 10. Barry Latman (3-0) won it in relief.

Blast Athletics

The Twins blasted Kansas City's winning streak at five games as Dan Dobbek belted a pair of home runs, the first a grand slam that wrapped it up in a six-run third inning against Ed Rakow (0-1). Don Mincher also homered for the Twins while southpaw Jack Kralick won his fourth, against one defeat, with a seven-hit job.

Baltimore, after losing five in a row, replaced Kansas City in fifth place while ending the Senators' winning streak at five. The Birds did it with a three-run eighth inning—and they got 'em all without a hit, scoring the three on six walks by loser Tom Sturdivant (2-3) and relievers Dave Sisler and Marty Kutyna. Hoyt Wilhelm (5-1) won it with two hitless innings of relief.

The Angels won the opener on home runs by Steve Bilko and Gene Leek, with Leek's shot breaking a 3-3 tie in the sixth against reliever Russ Kemmerer (0-2). Right-hander Jerry Casale, who had lost 12 in a row, three this year, was the winner. Ryne Duren, once the Yankees' bullpen pride, saved both games for the Angels, who took the nightcap on Earl Averill's two-run homer in the third off Bob Shaw (3-2). Duren pitched 1 2-3 innings of hitless relief in the opener, then nailed the second game for Ken McBride (3-2) with two innings of no-hit, shutout relief.

today as the Stevens Point hitters unloaded five doubles and a home run in beating Beloit. Bob Pawelski led the bombardment with a homer and double. Bill Knoedler and Mike Fortune belted two doubles each, while the other two-base blow was credited to Bill Tuszka.

Don Bosco scored seven times in the first inning to turn back Pius XI. Jim Peters and Gerry Redman shared the pitching honors for the winners, allowing just six hits.

Fernandez Is Choice Over Ted Wright

NEW YORK (AP) —Jorge Fernandez of Argentina still thinks he whipped Emile Griffith twice last year but didn't get the decision. Now that Griffith owns the world welterweight boxing title, Jorge is anxious to prove his point.

While Griffith is getting ready to defend June 3 in Los Angeles against Gaspar Ortega, Fernandez will keep busy tonight by boxing Ted Wright of Detroit at St. Nicholas Arena.

Fernandez is rated No. 4 among the challengers by Ring and Wright No. 8. However, Fernandez' only fight this year was an April 8 decision over Denny Moyer.

Gary Player, Leonard, Palmer May Defy PGA

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP) — Arnold Palmer, Gary Player and Stan Leonard have full intentions of playing in the International Cup matches, the Associated Press learned today.

The matches are set for San Juan, Puerto Rico, June 1-4, the same day as the Memphis Open which last June signed a Professional Golfers Association contract.

Memphis officials are insisting that Palmer, as U.S. Open champion; Player, because he has been a PGA tour winner this year, and Leonard, victor in the Western Open in Detroit last July, fulfill their PGA contracts to play in Memphis.

Palmer will represent the United States with Sam Snead as his partner. They won the team title last year in Dublin. Snead needed only PGA permission to play in Puerto Rico and received it. His recent Las Vegas victory was not a PGA co-sponsored event.

"I'm terribly disappointed and hurt," said South Africa's Gary Player when asked about Bob Rosburg's statement in which the PGA tournament committee chairman blasted Player.

About Player, Rosburg had said, "here is a player who goes to this country from South Africa and thinks it is real nice to win $48,000 in four months in PGA tournaments, but then suddenly doesn't think he should play by PGA rules."

The San Juan matches are sponsored by the International Golf Association. It has no PGA affiliation.

Player, Palmer and Leonard face a six-month suspension and a $500 fine if they bypass Memphis for San Juan.

Player would not be barred from competing in the U.S. Open in Detroit next month. However, he had planned to return to the United States for much of the PGA summer tour after competing in the British Open.

"Now I don't know what will happen," the 25-year-old Player said. "If I'm suspended, there's no use in returning."

Leonard, scheduled to represent Canada in the International, has been denied permission to skip Memphis. Leonard said, "no comment." And Palmer said, "I don't want to get involved."

However, all agree the situation is one big mess.

The snafu really started when more than 20 golfers sought to skip the $30,000 Memphis Open to play in a $15,000, four-day, pro-am at Odessa, Tex. The events conflict. Odessa is guaranteeing the touring pros a $1,000 minimum. For the trip to San Juan, the guarantee is believed to be $500.

Dark Loses Strategy Battle To His Former Boss, Durocher

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Alvin Dark's strategy has helped put his San Francisco Giants into the top spot in the National League but it finally backfired against none other than his old boss, Leo Durocher.

It happened in the eighth inning Friday night at Candlestick Park. The Los Angeles Dodgers, trailing 6-4, had two runners on base, two out and left-handed hitting John Roseboro at bat.

Right-hander Stu Miller pitched two balls to Roseboro. Then Dark brought in left-hander Billy O'Dell to take over the hurling. Roseboro usually doesn't get to hit against southpaws as the Dodgers platoon their catchers.

Since Manager Walt Alston had been chased by Umpire Vinnie Smith an inning before, the decision was up to Dodger Coach Durocher, who managed the Giants when Dark played for them.

Durocher stuck with Roseboro. O'Dell brought the count to three balls and a strike and then Roseboro crashed a fast ball over the right field fence and gave Los Angeles a lead they didn't relinquish in beating the Giants 8-7.

"In the situation, I was glad to see Leo leave Roseboro in there," Alston declared after the game.

Roseboro said this was the first year the Dodgers have let him hit against left-handers but "I'm not tearing them up."

He took second on an infield out, third on Yench's scratch single and scored when Ron Piotrowski delivered a pinch single to right.

The Bees scored one in the first on a walk, a passed ball, a groundout and a wild pitch. Foxes starter Jim Dunlap struck out the first two batters in the second, then walked the bases full. Roberto Pena socked a 2-run single to center.

Pena hit a 2-out single off winning reliefer Dick Tetrault in the ninth to set up the Bees' final run. He was singled to third by Napoleon and scored on a passed ball.

Big Ten Trims 'Need' Factor in Surprising Reversal of Attitude

Indiana Restored To Good Graces By Conference

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Big Ten athletic leaders, in a sudden, surprising reversal of attitude, have knocked out the controversial "need" factor from the conference's aid-to-athletes program.

The action came after Indiana University, on probation a year for recruiting violations, was restored to good graces in the conference although still under an NCAA ban.

Trims Scholarships

Some 24 hours after rejecting a package substitute for the current four-year-old aid program which rode a rocky path, the policy-making faculty representatives Friday approved the same new three-point proposal.

Besides eliminating the need proviso, the program stiffens entrance and eligibility requirements and trims all yearly sports scholarships from 100 to 80 per school.

The proceedings of the current conference business meeting defied a man-in-the-street translation. But the practical athletic directors quickly came to the heart of the matter with which the faculty representatives were wrestling, mainly in terms of selective athletic recruiting.

They met with the faculty representatives and stressed that a squeeze play was being applied to recruiting under the faculty group's earlier approval of more stringent college entrance requirements.

Predicted C-Minus

In brief, under the new program, any high school graduate can obtain a full ride—tuition, fees, room and board—if he can achieve what is called a predicted c-minus average based on high school ranking and results of college entrance tests.

In academic terminology, this requires such an athlete to maintain a 1.7 point scholastic rating at the end of his freshman year, a 1.8 mark at the end of his sophomore year and a 1.9 mark after his junior year.

The requirement for graduation is 2.0 (C), which means an athlete who survives to his senior year must pick up one-tenth of a point academically to capture a diploma. The new program is subject to approval by individual schools.

Under the current program, entrance to college was based on an athlete being in the upper two thirds of his class to become eligible for aid on need basis, or in the upper ~~one-fourth~~ for a "full ride" without considering need.

Wolves Close In on Big 10 Baseball Title

Freehan Leads Michigan Over Purdue, 7 to 5

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Michigan's Wolverines closed in on the Big Ten baseball title today, needing but one victory against Illinois to clinch their first championship in 11 years.

Victor over Purdue, 7-5, Friday, Michigan needs a split with Illinois to assure itself of the title. The only way the Wolverines could lose it would be to drop a doubleheader to Illinois.

Then anything ~~could happen, in~~cluding possible title claims by Indiana, Minnesota and Illinois.

9-1 Record

Going into the final day of the race, Michigan has a 9-1 record and a half game lead over Minnesota (10-3) which is seeking a fourth straight title.

Indiana is 9-3 and Illinois 8-3. No other club has a chance.

While Michigan is at Illinois for two, other doubleheaders find Minnesota at Iowa, Indiana at Northwestern, Ohio State at Wisconsin and Michigan State at Purdue.

Minnesota and Illinois kept pace with Michigan, but Indiana ran into trouble at Wisconsin. Minnesota defeated Iowa, 5-2, and Illinois bested Michigan State, 6-3, while Indiana suffered a 5-0 whipping at Wisconsin. OSU defeated Northwestern, 8-4.

Bill Freehan hit a pair of homers, then singled in two runs in a three-run ninth inning rally to lead Michigan to its triumph over Purdue.

Rush to Buy Stock Sends Prices High

Exchange Officials Worried About Too Much Speculation

BY SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The rush to buy stocks is sending the prices of many to record highs. But the conquering march of the bulls has brought with it some worrisome camp followers.

1. Stock exchange officials and government watchdogs fear too much of the buying is by unwary

2. They fret lest too much of often questionable stocks.

novices snapping up untried and the new speculative money in the markets is from borrowed funds. And if the bears should stage a flanking move on the market these on-the-cuff holdings might give way to threaten a rout of the entire list.

Borrowing Grows

Some of the borrowing is from brokers and banks and this can be measured—and it has been growing.

But if the public wants to speculate it can get the money from other sources harder to measure quickly. It can draw on its savings, and there is evidence it has been doing so. The public can raise money for speculation by borrowing on such assets as homes and insurance policies. How much of this has gone into the rush to buy stocks on the exchanges and the over-the-counter market is hard to guess.

The speculative fever has led stock exchange officials to warn the unwary against buying out of enthusiasm unbased on facts. Brokerage houses sound the same note. The Securities and Exchange Commission is investigating some of the stock deals and practices in the current bull market.

Wall Street Watches

And Wall Street always watches the reaction of the Federal Reserve Board to any upsurge in prices and trading, and especially to the buying on borrowed money.

The Federal Reserve can regulate at least part of these credit purchases by changing the official margin rate. In July 1960 the rate was 90 per cent. But stock prices were weak then and the rate was lowered to 70 per cent.

This meant that you had to put up 70 per cent of a stock's price in cash for any new buying on the regulated stock market. You could borrow up to 30 per cent from your broker. If the price should fall you'd have to put up more cash to stay within the 70 per cent margin.

When markets show signs of running away, the Federal Reserve raises the margin to lessen the flow of credit and put buyers on or close to an all-cash basis. When prices are weak and trading dawdles, the margin usually is cut—sometimes in recent years to 50 per cent, but never back to the fractional lows that preceded the 1929 stock crash.

"I canceled the show,' Principal Wesley G. Thornson said.

Thornson said he canceled it after his superiors advised him a minstrel show might be offensive to Negroes. The show was in rehearsal for several weeks at the all-white school.

TV Stars' Growing Girth May Point to Trend

Big Men Winning Popularity Seen as Move Away From Fad of No-Food Diets

BY JINGO

One of the reasons given for the controversial farm surpluses in the nation is the penchant for Americans to hold back the ravages of time — at least at the waistline. The theory contends dieting is so prevalent that not enough food is being eaten.

Jingo

TV popularity is giving a hint that the farm experts may have to find another theory. There is an indication that the Diamond Jim Brady silhouette may come back in favor. It is hoped that the fad will remain in masculine circles!

It is contended that Raymond Burr started the trend with his Perry Mason. In the light of Burr's silhouette as seen in some of the late, late shows when he was really a heavy, Perry is quite svelte despite his bulk.

There is no doubt about some of the other big men: such as, 300-pound Dan Blocker in Bonanza, 285- pound Dan Blocker in Bonanza, 235-pound Sebastian Cabot in Checkmate and 350-pound Ed Wilson and 300-pound Victor Bruno in The Untouchables.

Despite what TV popularity may dictate, Jingo is still of the opinion it is the wise man who avoids carrying around an extra man made of blubber.

Remember the extra real-life attraction Lucy Ball gave to her TV series with the advent of little Rickie? Ozzie and Harriet may bring a bit of their family life into their popular series too. It is rumored by Jingo's Hollywood spies the Nelsons' script writers will devise a wedding for the Nelsons' David and June Blair just before their son plays the same scene with the same girl in real life.

* * *

Although second base can not be considered a major cause for the Milwaukee Braves' tenancy in the second division, there certainly must be some nostalgic thoughts about the time when Red Schoendient moved his diamond home to Milwaukee from St. Louis. Red's Brave career will certainly add to the audience when Dick Powell dramatizes the courageous second sacker's life on TV soon. Powell wants Mike Dante to play the role. Mike played with the old Washington Senators before turning to acting. Taking the part of a member of a championship team will be quite an assignment for an old Senator.

NBC's "The White Paper" show has gathered to itself a raft of coveted prizes for its depth analysis of current events. Because of these past performances its next venture will be waited for with a good deal of anticipation. In addition it will have the attraction of touching on a problem affecting the Fox Cities area. On May 23 the show will examine "Railroads: End of the Line." The Chicago and North Western will be one of the lines discussed.

NEENAH — The Fourth Grade String Orchestra will make its public debut at 3 p.m. Sunday in the elementary Spring Festival of Music at the Neenah High School gym.

Film Location Changed

ROME, Italy (AP)—A film on the rape of the Sabines will be made in Yugoslavia instead of in Italy, where it happened. An Italian-French company producing the movie says the reason is that Yugoslavia's is the last army in Europe with cavalry. The film has battle scenes that will need 1,500 horses.

UPI Telephoto

The Rev. John J. Walsh, Jesuit priest on the Marquette University drama faculty and director of the Marquette Players, has been selected to direct the CBS television program "Look Up and Live." He formerly was with NBC's "Catholic Hour."

TV Academy Praised for Great Show

Top Entertainment With No Quarrels On Award Choices

BY BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Academy aftermath—

Oscar remains his handsome self, but Emmy seems to get prettier every year. This week's Television Academy show saw her at her best.

That doesn't mean she can't improve—no 13-year-old is perfect. But at least Emmy has passed the awkwardness of the early years and seems on the brink of maturity.

The entertainment portion of Tuesday night's program was handled about as brightly as it could be. But the whole thing would have been for naught if the awards had not been apt. Which they generally were.

There can be no real quarrel with the choices. Certainly "Macbeth" deserved its multiple victory, since it added a touch of greatness to a lackluster season. Its sponsor, Joyce C. Hall, certainly deserved the special bravo from the academy trustees. If only there were more like-minded sponsors!

Popular Choice

Fred Astaire is always a popular choice, especially when his perfectionism is compared with the slapdash specials of other big names. The Huntley - Brinkley twins are the biggest thing in the news line, and Twentieth Century puts out shows of continuous quality.

Raymond Burr is TV's hardest-working actor and his work never fails to convince. Barbara Stanwyck was a fine choice as best series actress: she is skillful in any role. Her show deserved a better fate than to be dumped after one season.

You can't argue with the awards to Leonard Bernstein and Rod Serling. But there might be a little carping in the humor category. This is not to detract from Jack Benny, master of comedy. But he already has a shelf full of Emmies while Bob Hope has none. This omission must be corrected.

West Germans to Back Space Communications

BONN, Germany (AP)—West Germany has offered to contribute from $3 million to $5 million toward the start of a trans-atlantic space communications system.

Radio calls would be relayed through satellites stationed six miles up in space under plans being worked out by experts from the United States, Britain, France and West Germany.

Ecuador Accuses Peru Of Making Threats

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) — The Foreign Office today accused Peru of reinforcing its troops and making military flights along the two countries' disputed frontier.

The border was defined by a 1941 agreement that gave much of the disputed territory to Peru and named Argentina, Brazil, Chile and the United States as guarantors of the frontier. Ecuador President Jose Velasco Ibarra's administration, inaugurated last year, has refused to accept the 1941 agreement as final, claiming it was signed under duress.
